BRITISH WAR DEBT DEFAULT NOW PROBABLE

CABINET MEETING AT 11 P.M.

CONVERSATIONS STILL GOING ON

New York, June 13.

COMPLETE DEFAULT of the British debt instalment to the United States is now considered probable, unless last night's Cabinet meeting reached a fresh decision, according to what is described as an authoritative statement made in United States quarters in London, quoted by an Associated Press copyright despatch published here.—Reuter.

CONGRESS HANGS ON

REFUSES TO TAKE HINTS

NO ADJOURNMENT
YET

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received June 13, 10.50 a.m.)

Washington, June 12.
The House of Representatives has adjourned but only until noon tomorrow, thus blocking the possibility of ending the present session of Congress to-night as President Roosevelt had desired.

President Roosevelt informed the leaders of Congress last week, that in order to secure the adjournment of Congress last week, he would not seek authority to negotiate tariff pacts.

Congress appears to be deliberately refusing to adjourn, suspecting it would seem, that President Roosevelt has ulterior motives in desiring to bring the session to an end.—Reuter.

MRS. LANDAU OUT OF HOSPITAL

Case Against Mr. Bailey to Begin on Monday

Hearing in the case against Mr. H. P. Bailey of the General Electric Company, charged with driving a motor car dangerously, failing to stop and failing to report an accident, has been fixed for 2.30 p.m. on Monday next.

Inspector C. F. Alexander informed his Worship at the Central Police Court this morning that Mrs. Landau, the victim of the accident, was discharged from hospital yesterday evening.

The defendant is represented by Mr. D. B. Evans and Mr. H. A. de B. Botelho is watching the case on behalf of Mrs. Landau.

FARM CREDIT BILL

PASSES AMERICAN SENATE

Washington, June 11.

The Senate to-day passed the Farm Credit Administration Bill, which had already passed the House of Representatives, with a provision, amending the Cotton Futures Act, for levying upon all sales of cotton contracts a tax of one cent per bale involved in any such contract.

The Bill has yet to secure the agreement of the House of Representatives in conference with the Senate, as well as President Roosevelt's signature.—Reuter.

Chan Fat, a foki of a cargo boat, is in hospital with a crushed foot suffered through being caught between two boats while working cargo in the harbour yesterday.

London, June 13.

Another hurried meeting of the British Cabinet assembled at No. 10, Downing Street at eleven o'clock last night to discuss the war debts situation.

Another despatch was received, it is believed, from Sir Ronald Lindsay, outlining the progress of conversations in Washington.

No decision was reached by the Cabinet. It is understood that the conversations in Washington are still continuing.

CONFLICTING REPORTS.

Meanwhile, reports from the United States regarding the latest position are very conflicting.

A Washington report states that following a close study of the legality of accepting part payment on the instalments due on June 16, it is believed that President Roosevelt is ready to take whatever he can get without prejudice to the legal rights of the United States.

At the same time, the New York newspapers quote a high French authority in London as saying that Washington has refused the British offer of a ten per cent. payment on the debt instalment.

FRENCH ATTITUDE.

There is reason to believe that France does not intend to make any effort to meet the war debt instalment due on June 16, or to pay off any of the arrears on the December instalment.

Two reasons are advanced for this attitude. It is stated that the French Government hold the belief that Washington would prefer to be presented with default than to be asked, at this moment, to revise the debt agreement. President Roosevelt, it is said, does not wish to test the strength of the opposition to revision at this stage, and would prefer to face Congress with "They won't pay!" rather than with "I have agreed to reduce payment to so much."—Reuter.

JACKIE BROWN RETAINS HIS TITLE

Flyweight Championship of the World

London, June 11.

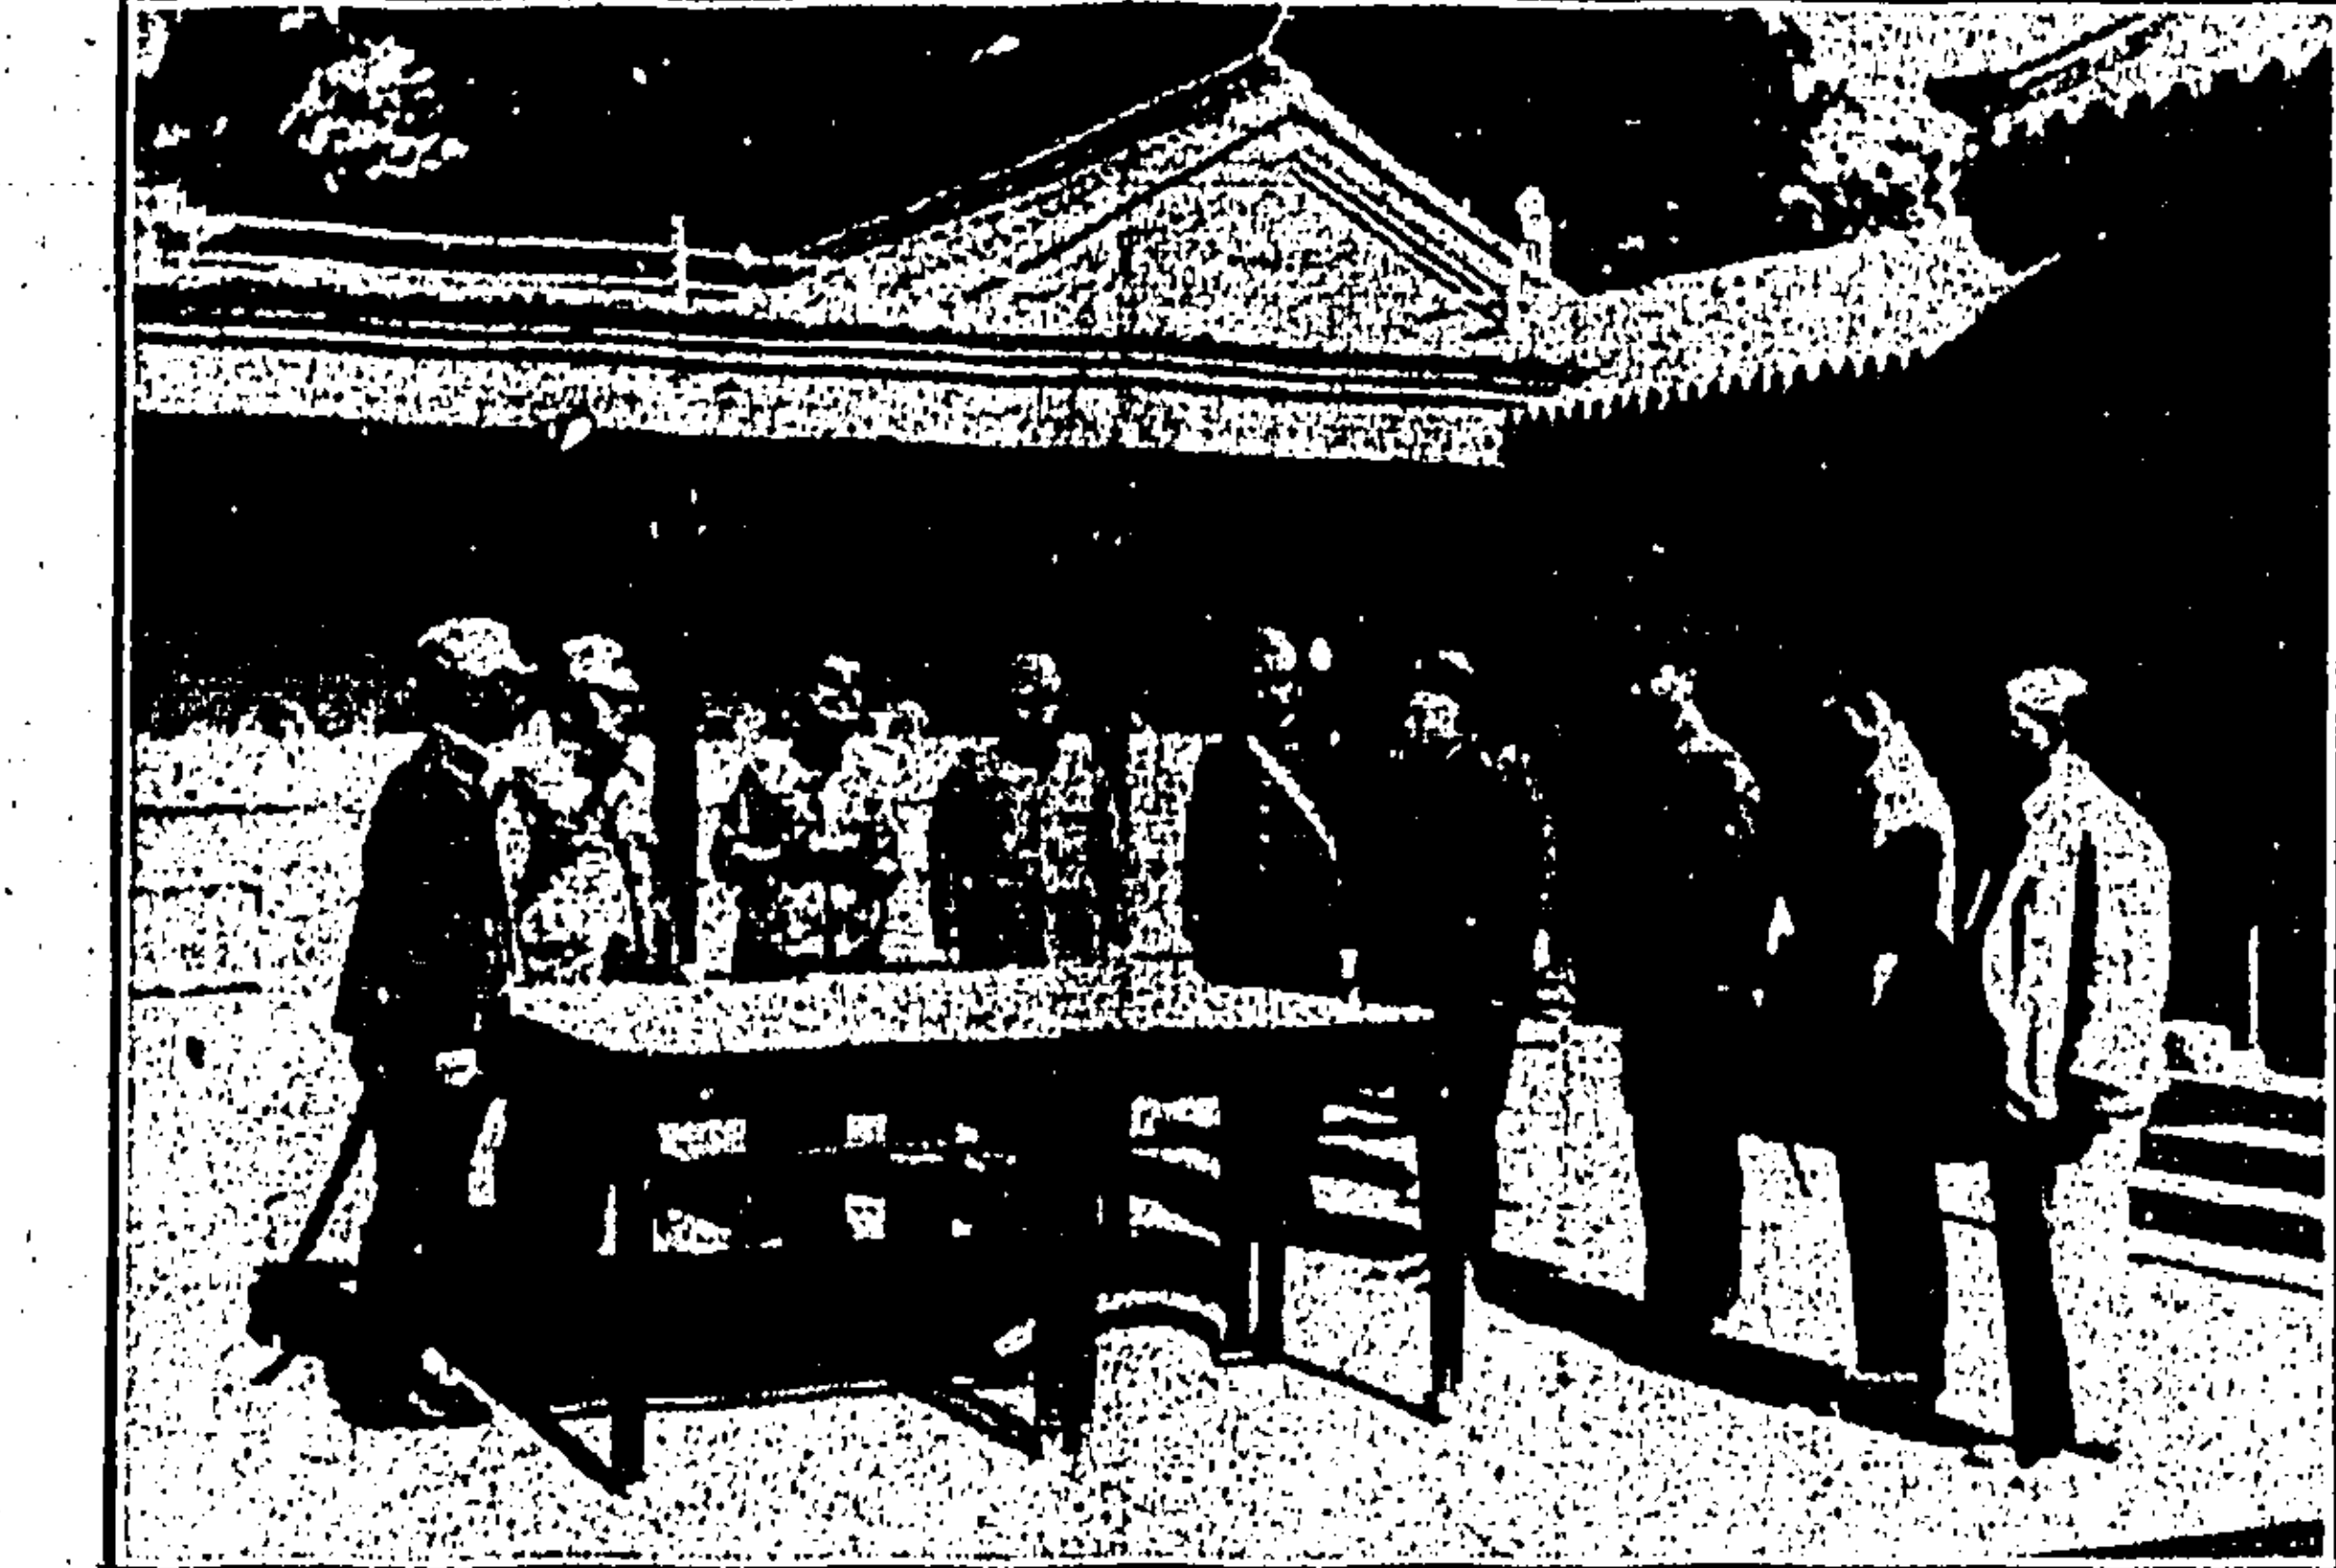

Jackie Brown, the British boxer, is still flyweight champion of the world.

To-night at Olympia he defended his title in a fifteen rounds fight with Valentin Angelmann of France and beat his opponent on points after the match had gone the full distance.—Reuter.

BANTAM CHAMPION.

Olympia also saw Johnny King, British Bantamweight champion, win the British Empire title and the Empire Lonsdale belt when he beat Bobby Letham, Canadian title holder on points in a fifteen round contest.

Len Harvey won the British lightweight championship and Lonsdale Belt when he outpointed Eddie Phillips in a fifteen round scrap.—Reuter.

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received June 13, 10.30 a.m.)

Madrid, June 12.

Spain's new cabinet has been formed following the resignation of the previous Government owing to President Zamora's refusal to accept a proposal to re-constitute the cabinet without consulting other groups.

Senor Azana, the late Premier, is again Prime Minister and Minister for War, whilst Senor De los Rios is Foreign Minister and Senor Venuela Minister for Finance.

President Zamora was recently the central figure in the political imbroglio, when after much hesitation, he signed a Bill for the confiscation of all church property.—Reuter.

WORK BEHIND THE SCENES

TWO COMMISSIONS FORMED

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received June 13, 8.30 a.m.)

LONDON, JUNE 12.

WORK UPON THE BAFFLING PROBLEMS CONFRONTING THE WORLD ECONOMIC CONFERENCE HAS ALREADY COMMENCED BEHIND THE SCENES, ALTHOUGH THE NEXT FEW DAYS WILL BE SPENT IN PLENARY SESSION, DURING WHICH SPEECHES WILL BE MADE BY THE LEADERS OF THE SIXTY SEVEN DELEGATES.

The Conference, as a whole, is impressed with the seriousness of the tasks before it. It is generally felt that upon its success depends the ordered progress of the world in the years to come.

In some quarters, a feeling of pessimism seems to prevail, although, in an interview with Reuter, Mr. Soong said he was of opinion that it was too early to express either optimism or pessimism. He stressed that if the Conference failed it would mean the rapid growth of economic nationalism.

M. LITVINOFF'S PESSIMISM

Mr. Soong expressed his satisfaction at the composition of the Bureau of the Conference, comprising representatives of sixteen nations under the chairmanship of Mr. Ramsay MacDonald.

He said it seemed to be the most representative body possible.

M. LITVINOFF, CYNIC.

M. Litvinoff, the Soviet Foreign Commissioner, and the principal Russian delegate to the Conference, foreshadowed that he would make some concrete proposals in the early stages of the Conference.

He was not, in any way, inclined to be optimistic, however. He preferred to wait before pronouncing any sort of judgment in view of the fact that many recent international conferences, which opened with equally sincere expressions of goodwill, ended negatively, even disastrously.—Reuter.

TWO COMMISSIONS.

London, June 12.

Following the plenary meeting of the Conference, the Bureau, comprising sixteen representative nations, held a private meeting at which it was decided to establish two Commissions: the first to study the monetary problems before the Conference and the second, the economic problems, such as tariffs, quotas, exchange restrictions and so on.

These Commissions will probably meet at convenient times to formulate their programme of work, but it is not expected that they will begin serious operations until Friday, if the general discussion has finished by then.

M.C.C. REPLY TO AUSTRALIA

READY TO DISCUSS

BARRACKING
BANE

London, June 13.

The leg-theory bowling controversy has passed into a new stage as the result of a long discussion by the Committee of the Marylebone Cricket Club.

This type of bowling is now definitely upheld by M.C.C. which has addressed a seven-hundred word cable in reply to the Australian Board of Control's protest against "body-line" bowling.

The M.C.C. state the term "body-line" appears to imply a direct attack by the bowler upon the batsman and that such implication, applied to any English bowling in Australia, is improper and incorrect.

Such action by any bowler would be an offence against the spirit of the game and would be immediately condemned.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

NEW COIFFURES

Curls and Partings Are Fashionable

(From a Paris Correspondent)

The leading Paris coiffeurs have decided that the natural shape of a woman's head must be shown, but with plenty of curls either round the ears or low down on the nape of the neck, which makes all the difference between the present style and the "boyish" crops which were favoured some years ago.

However, the debutant crop of the season exhibits many bobs as well as tidy little knob coiffures. A remarkable departure is that many of the newest styles in coiffure favour a parting, either in the middle or slightly at the left side of the head. This parting is taken right back to the crown of the head, and the hair is waved down on either side to the ear, where ringlets, which are distinctly early Victorian in their effect, cluster, so that only the base of the ear is visible. Ethernal hairpins made of the very finest wire, quite unlosable and certainly invisible, are being used by the coiffeurs to keep unruly waves in place. If you want to believe that you will go down to your grave without hairpins, you will be disillusioned.

An important development is the return of the short sleeves and even of sleeveless frocks. Many summer dresses are going to be worn without sleeves. A new sleeve which is interesting may be sketched as follows:—The material winds round the arm from shoulder to elbow and then falls in a large square.

Some of the new sleeves are very tight at the top and widen out a little above the elbow in enormous flounces.

FASHION NOTES

(From A Paris Correspondent)

Sleeves are again all important. There is a newcomer, a full three-quarter sleeve which will be used on semi-tailored frocks in a way to give a totally new effect and a hint of flamboyance, which is very becoming to the woman with a slim figure.

Dressmakers cannot ignore the importance of the full sleeve; but the fullness is invariably nearer the wrist and elbow than the shoulder.

The waistline is a thorn in the side of the Paris dressmaker. One famous house who boldly dropped it to the hips last summer, is now frankly bringing it up again.

A second designer who brought in a tight, high line, is thinking twice about it for the spring.

The general tendency is to keep the waistline on the upward trend. Yet there is no reason to think that the so-called natural waistline will be general this year.

The most usual place is the very top of the hip-bone, particularly when there is a belt. Waists will be varied enough to please the most difficult woman, and the same thing applies to the jackets and coats which are being made.

Very arresting is the news regarding the neck lines for spring and summer. These have crept up to the neck both for evening and day wear. Sometimes one sees frocks draped right up to the neck in front—this for evening wear—while the back is very low. Another neck line is tied high up round the throat.

SAVOURY RECIPES

Do You Like Spaghetti
and Meat?

Spaghetti and Veal

Stew 1lb. of veal very gently in some stock, with some sweet herbs, a shallot, and some salt and pepper to taste. Cook until tender. Meanwhile cook some spaghetti in salted water until quite soft. Then strain. When the veal is tender pour enough of the gravy over the spaghetti to moisten. Heat the spaghetti up with salt and pepper to taste. Put the veal on a dish and serve with the spaghetti piled round.

Spaghetti and Beef

If fresh celery cannot be obtained, celery in tins can be used. Wash the celery and cut into long thin strips about three inches. Put them into a casserole, with about half a pound of beef skirt cut into small pieces. Add to these about four ounces of spaghetti that has previously been boiled in slightly salted water for about ten minutes.

Cook these together in moderate heat for about an hour, and 15 minutes, adding a seasoning of pep-

Corned Beef and Spaghetti

Cook some spaghetti until soft. Drain the water off. Return to saucepan, add enough fresh hot water to moisten, and one meat cube. Cook for five minutes stirring thoroughly to mix in the meat cube. Meanwhile, have some tinned peas cooking according to directions given on tin. Strain the peas and keep them hot.

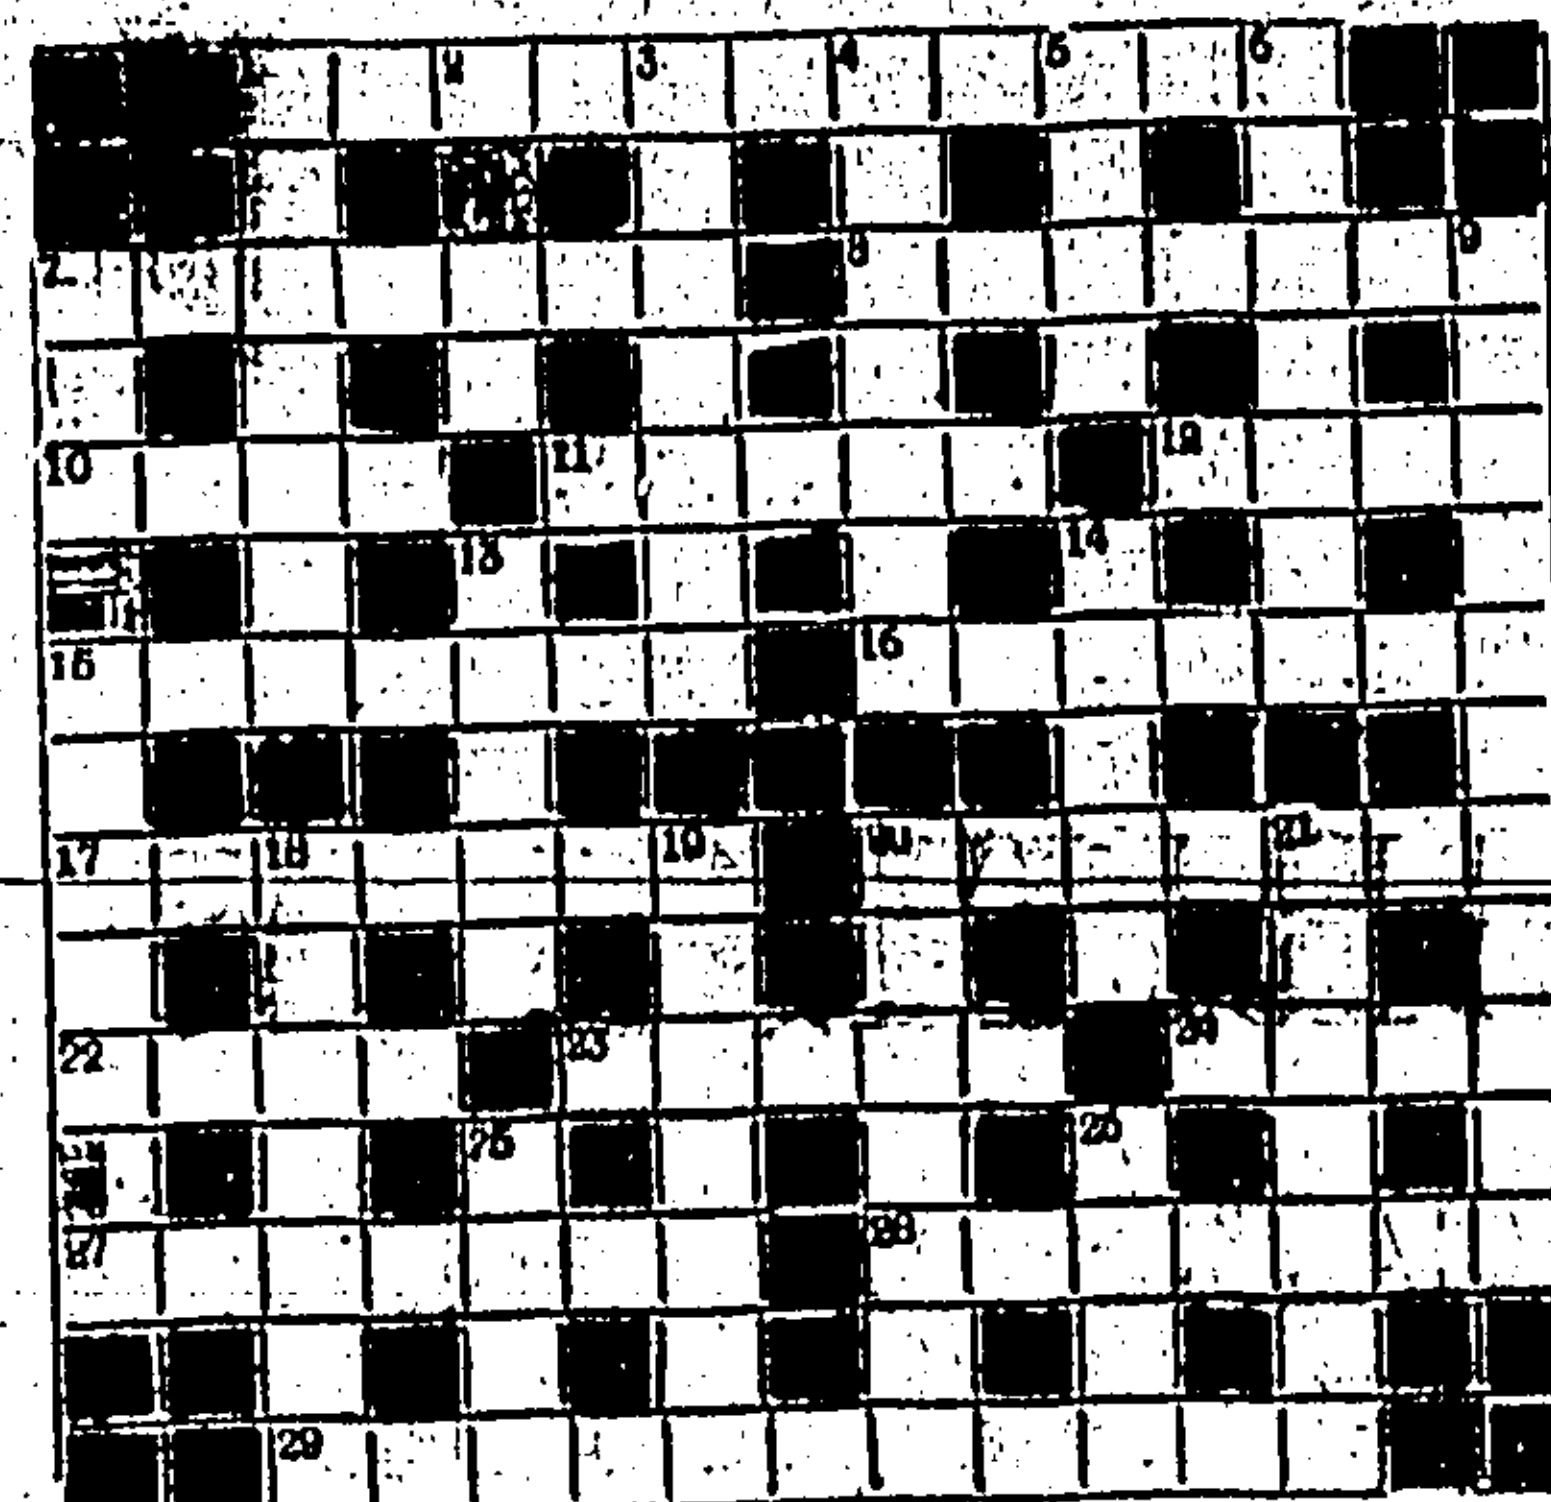

Cut up some corned beef and add to spaghetti; add pepper and salt, if necessary, cook for about six minutes and add the peas. Heat them all together and serve.

Spaghetti and Sheep's Hearts

This is a change from the usual ways of cooking sheep's hearts. It is a dish that could be prepared previously for reheating. For two people prepare four ounces of spaghetti as in previous recipe. After straining the spaghetti put it into a casserole with a sprinkling of sweet herbs, pepper and salt.

Wash the sheep's heart (one large or two small ones), cut off any fat, and then slice it up, and put with the spaghetti. Add a piece of butter and a small quantity of water. Cook with moderate heat for about an hour. Serve in casserole.

DARLING FOOL

by MABEL
McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

MONICA O'DARE, 20 and beautiful, is in love with DAN CARDIGAN, one of the town's rich young men. At a local dancing place where she has gone with Dan she meets her friend, SANDRA LAWRENCE, with a handsome and mysterious newcomer, CHARLES EUSTACE.

SANDRA, immediately takes charge of Dan. Monica, hurt, allows Charles to escort her home. When Monica's older brother, BILL, is arrested at the garage where he works she rushes to his aid.

CHAPTER V

Something in the policeman's tone stiffened Monica's trembling backbone. She actually managed a laugh. "Bill arrested?" she echoed. "But that's absurd."

Bill's dark frown relaxed the merest trifle and Monica had the satisfaction of seeing her mother straighten, look about her bravely.

Absurd—of course it was absurd. Bill O'Dare under arrest! Why, he'd lived in Belvedere all his 22 years. He was honest as the day was long! Everybody knew that. The big man who dominated the scene found speech. He glowed at Monica.

"Absurd, is it?" he bellowed. "And who, may I ask, are you?"

"I'm his sister," Monica said, bringing the full battery of her flashing amber eyes to rest upon him. "Would you mind telling me what this is all about?"

Several people began to talk at once. The big man silenced them.

"Maybe you don't know," he began truculently, "that there's been a robbery down at the gas station—"

—an' a big one. Maybe you don't know this young feller let them get away. Maybe you don't know we have positive evidence he conspired with them payroll thieves—"

The veins in Bill's forehead were swollen, painfully. His scornful blue eyes flashed defiance. Was it fear that lurked behind those blue eyes? No, Monica would not entertain that thought for a single minute.

"What evidence?" she demanded staunchly.

"He was seen at Black Tree Inn with the lot of them last night," said the big man, enjoying the drama of this announcement. "He knew them. He was in it. He left there early and who he was with. Guess that sounds guilty, don't it?"

Bill said thickly, fiercely, "That's a lie!"

"It's not a lie you were drinkin' with the lot of them at the Inn?"

"No." The monosyllable was wrenched from Bill. "No. But—"

The big man cut him off abruptly. "None of our buts, young feller."

"I didn't know them. They just sat down at my table," Bill slung across at him. "I swear I didn't know—"

His eyes found his mother's haggard face, implored her to believe him.

"Then when they drove up, brave as you please, at 11 o'clock didn't you fill up their gas tanks and pass the time o' day with them as happy as you please?" went on the big man. "When the says 'hands up,' didn't you let them get away with it? Don't tell me you aren't part and parcel of the gang!"

Monica said in a low clear voice, "Don't worry, Bill. We believe you. We'll get a lawyer."

But Bill had been at Black Tree Inn. That alone counted against him. Her heart was pounding painfully. No matter what he had done the O'Dares would stand by him. But how dreadful it all was. The tag end of a verse she had always loved came into her mind just then.

"The men of my own stock. Bitter bad they may be, But at least they hear the things I hear."

They see the things I see—

Bill looked oddly like their dead father at this moment. Daddy, the most honest man who'd ever lived. No, Bill O'Dare wasn't—couldn't be a thief. There must be a way out of this nightmare and Monica would have to find it.

Of all the townsfolk she could think of only one friend to appeal to. Judge Cory, Miss Anstice's father. He had been her grandfather's partner in the law firm of Kerrigan and Cory.

She found the judge in his dusty office above the First National Bank. Trembling, she told him her story. The old man looked at her shrewdly out of rheumy blue eyes. "I'll go down to see him. Don't you worry. Did they say anything about furnishing bail?"

Monica threw out her hands. "We haven't any money, Judge. I didn't dare ask about it even."

"No. No. I s'pose not." He contemplated the problem, stroking his white beard. "There isn't any one, I suppose—"

Monica flushed. She knew what he must be thinking. Everyone in town supposed her to be engaged to Dan Cardigan. Wouldn't the Cardigans help her out—that was what Judge Cory meant.

"No one," she said with decision. What the proud Cardigans would think when they heard that Bill O'Dare was in jail she did not dare to consider. It was Bill she had to fight for now.

"I'll go right down and see the boy." The old man stood up, reaching for his battered Panama. "I'll do the best I can."

She had to be content with that. Somehow she managed a smile for her mother, waiting downstairs. "He's going, right over. Don't worry. I'm sure everything's going to be all right."

"Monica, I'm sorry," the older woman said in a low voice, "but I'm not feeling very well—"

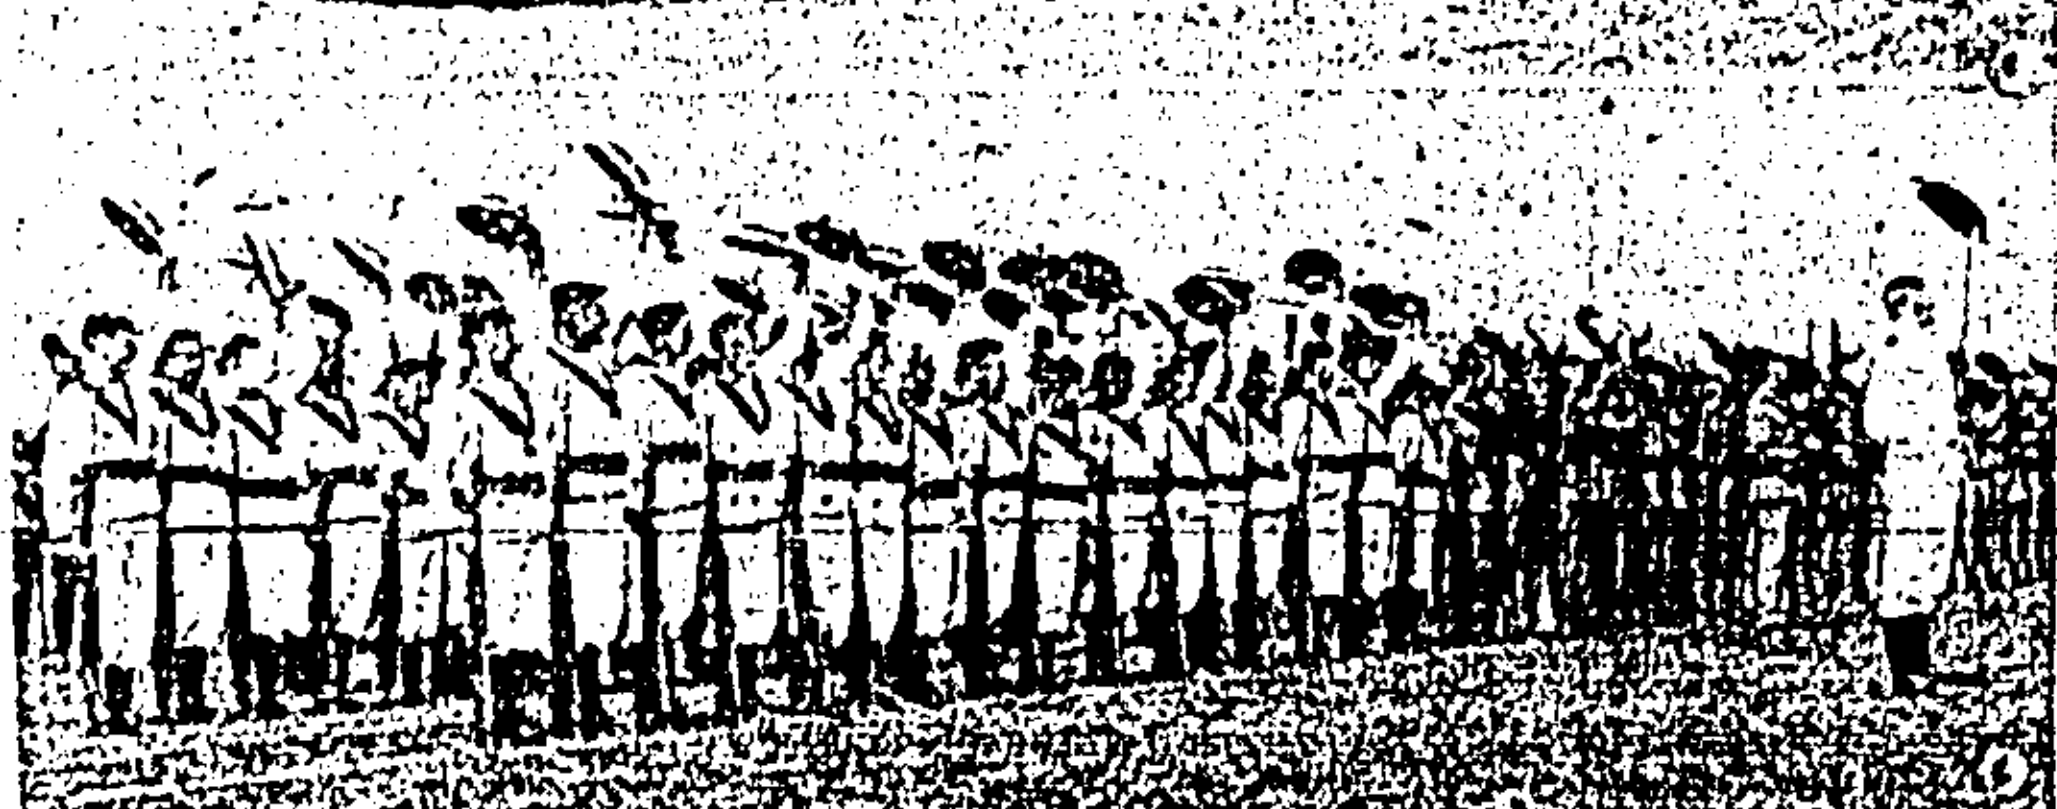

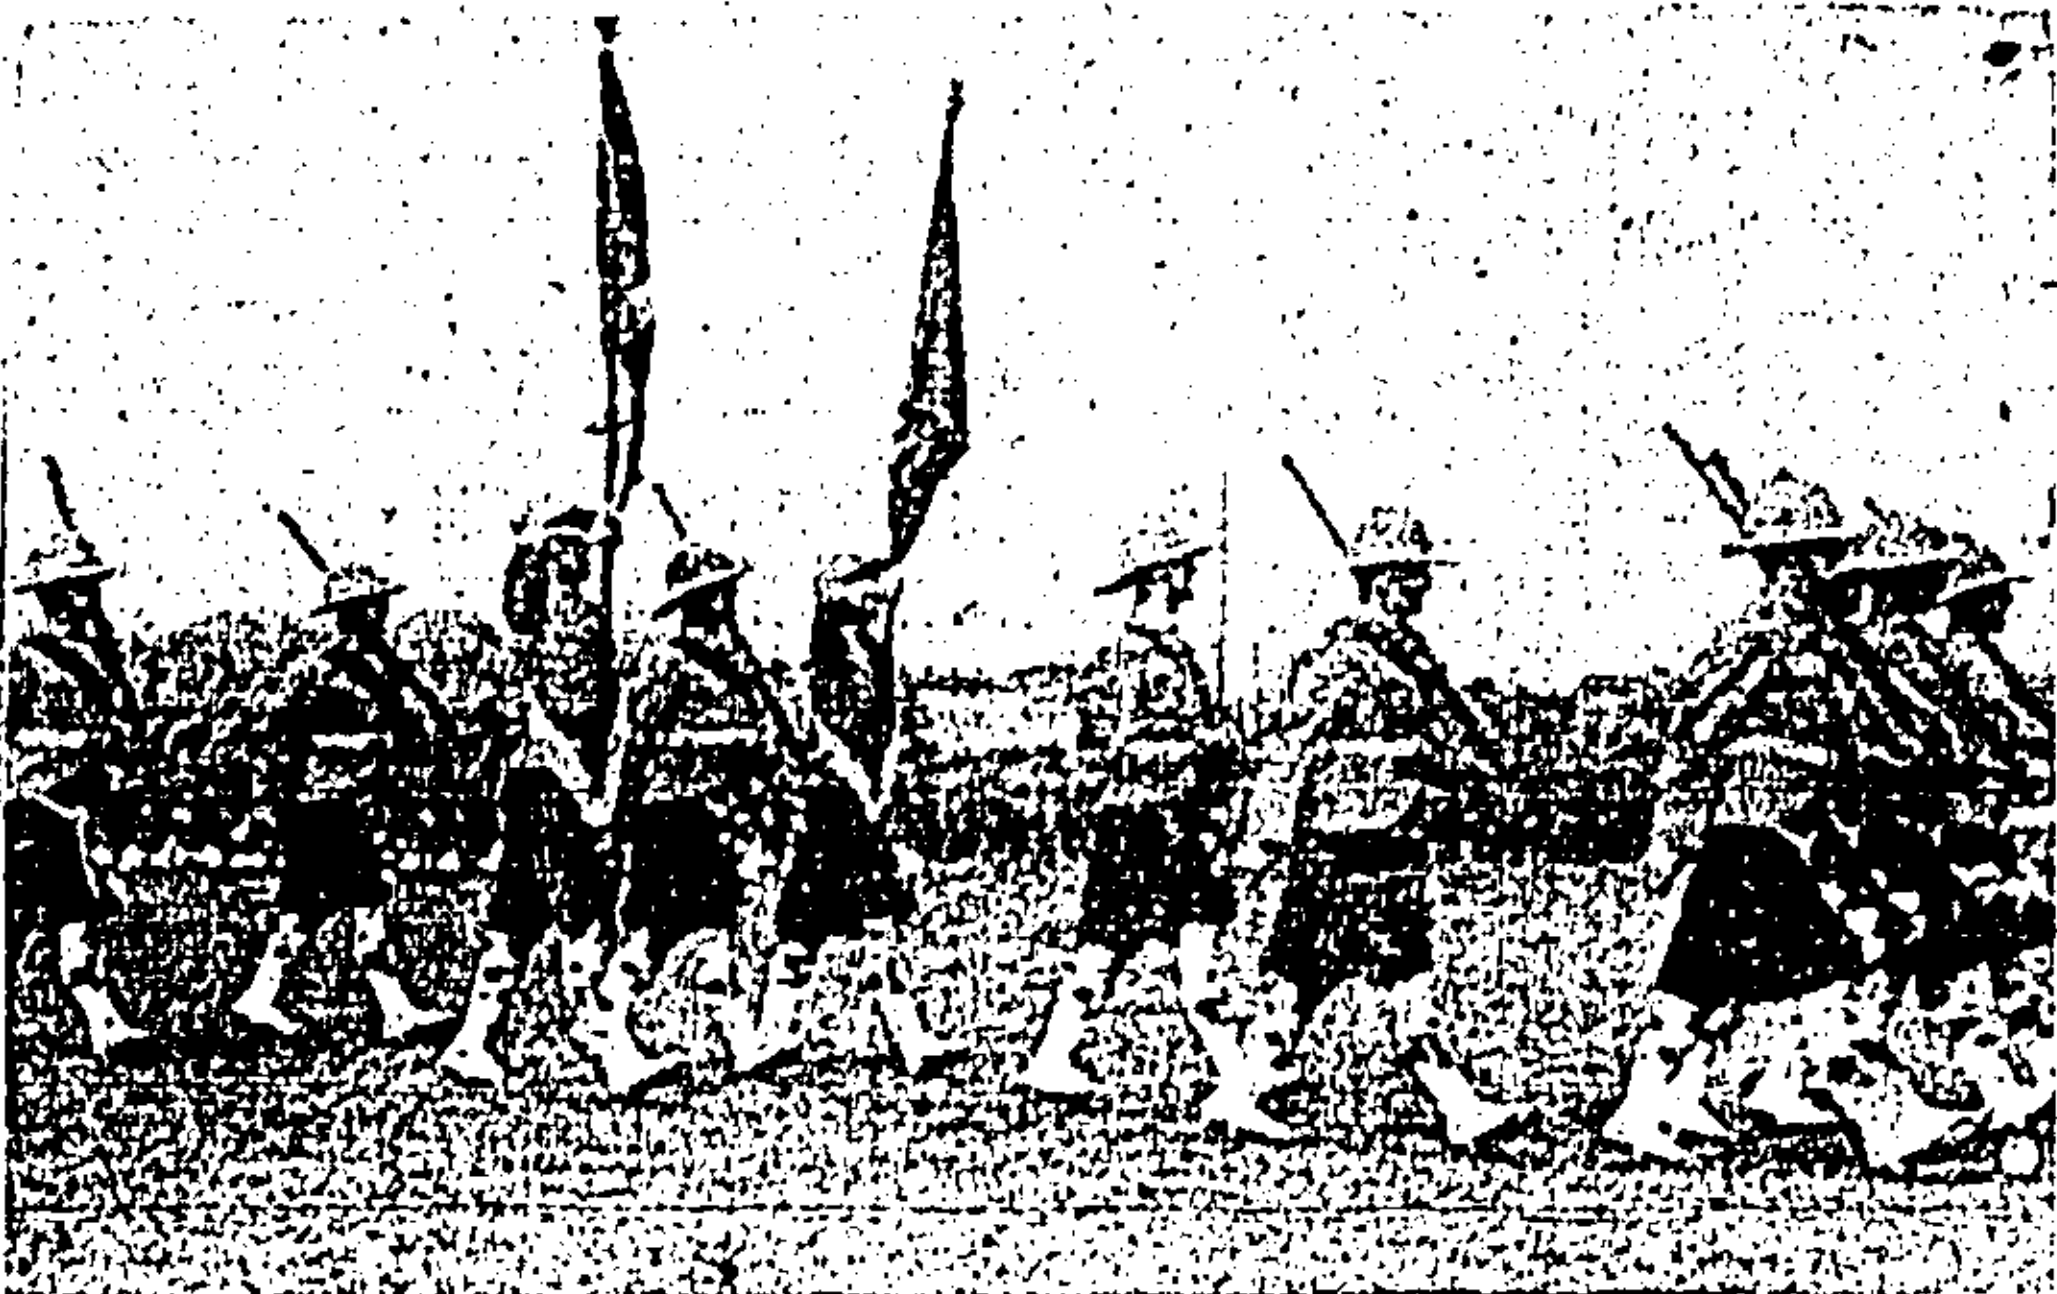

She swayed against the girl, her face lighted with a deadly pallor. Monica felt the world swimming around her for one dreadful moment. Then she heard a friendly voice. Charles Eustace's.

"Let me carry her to the car, Miss O'Dare."

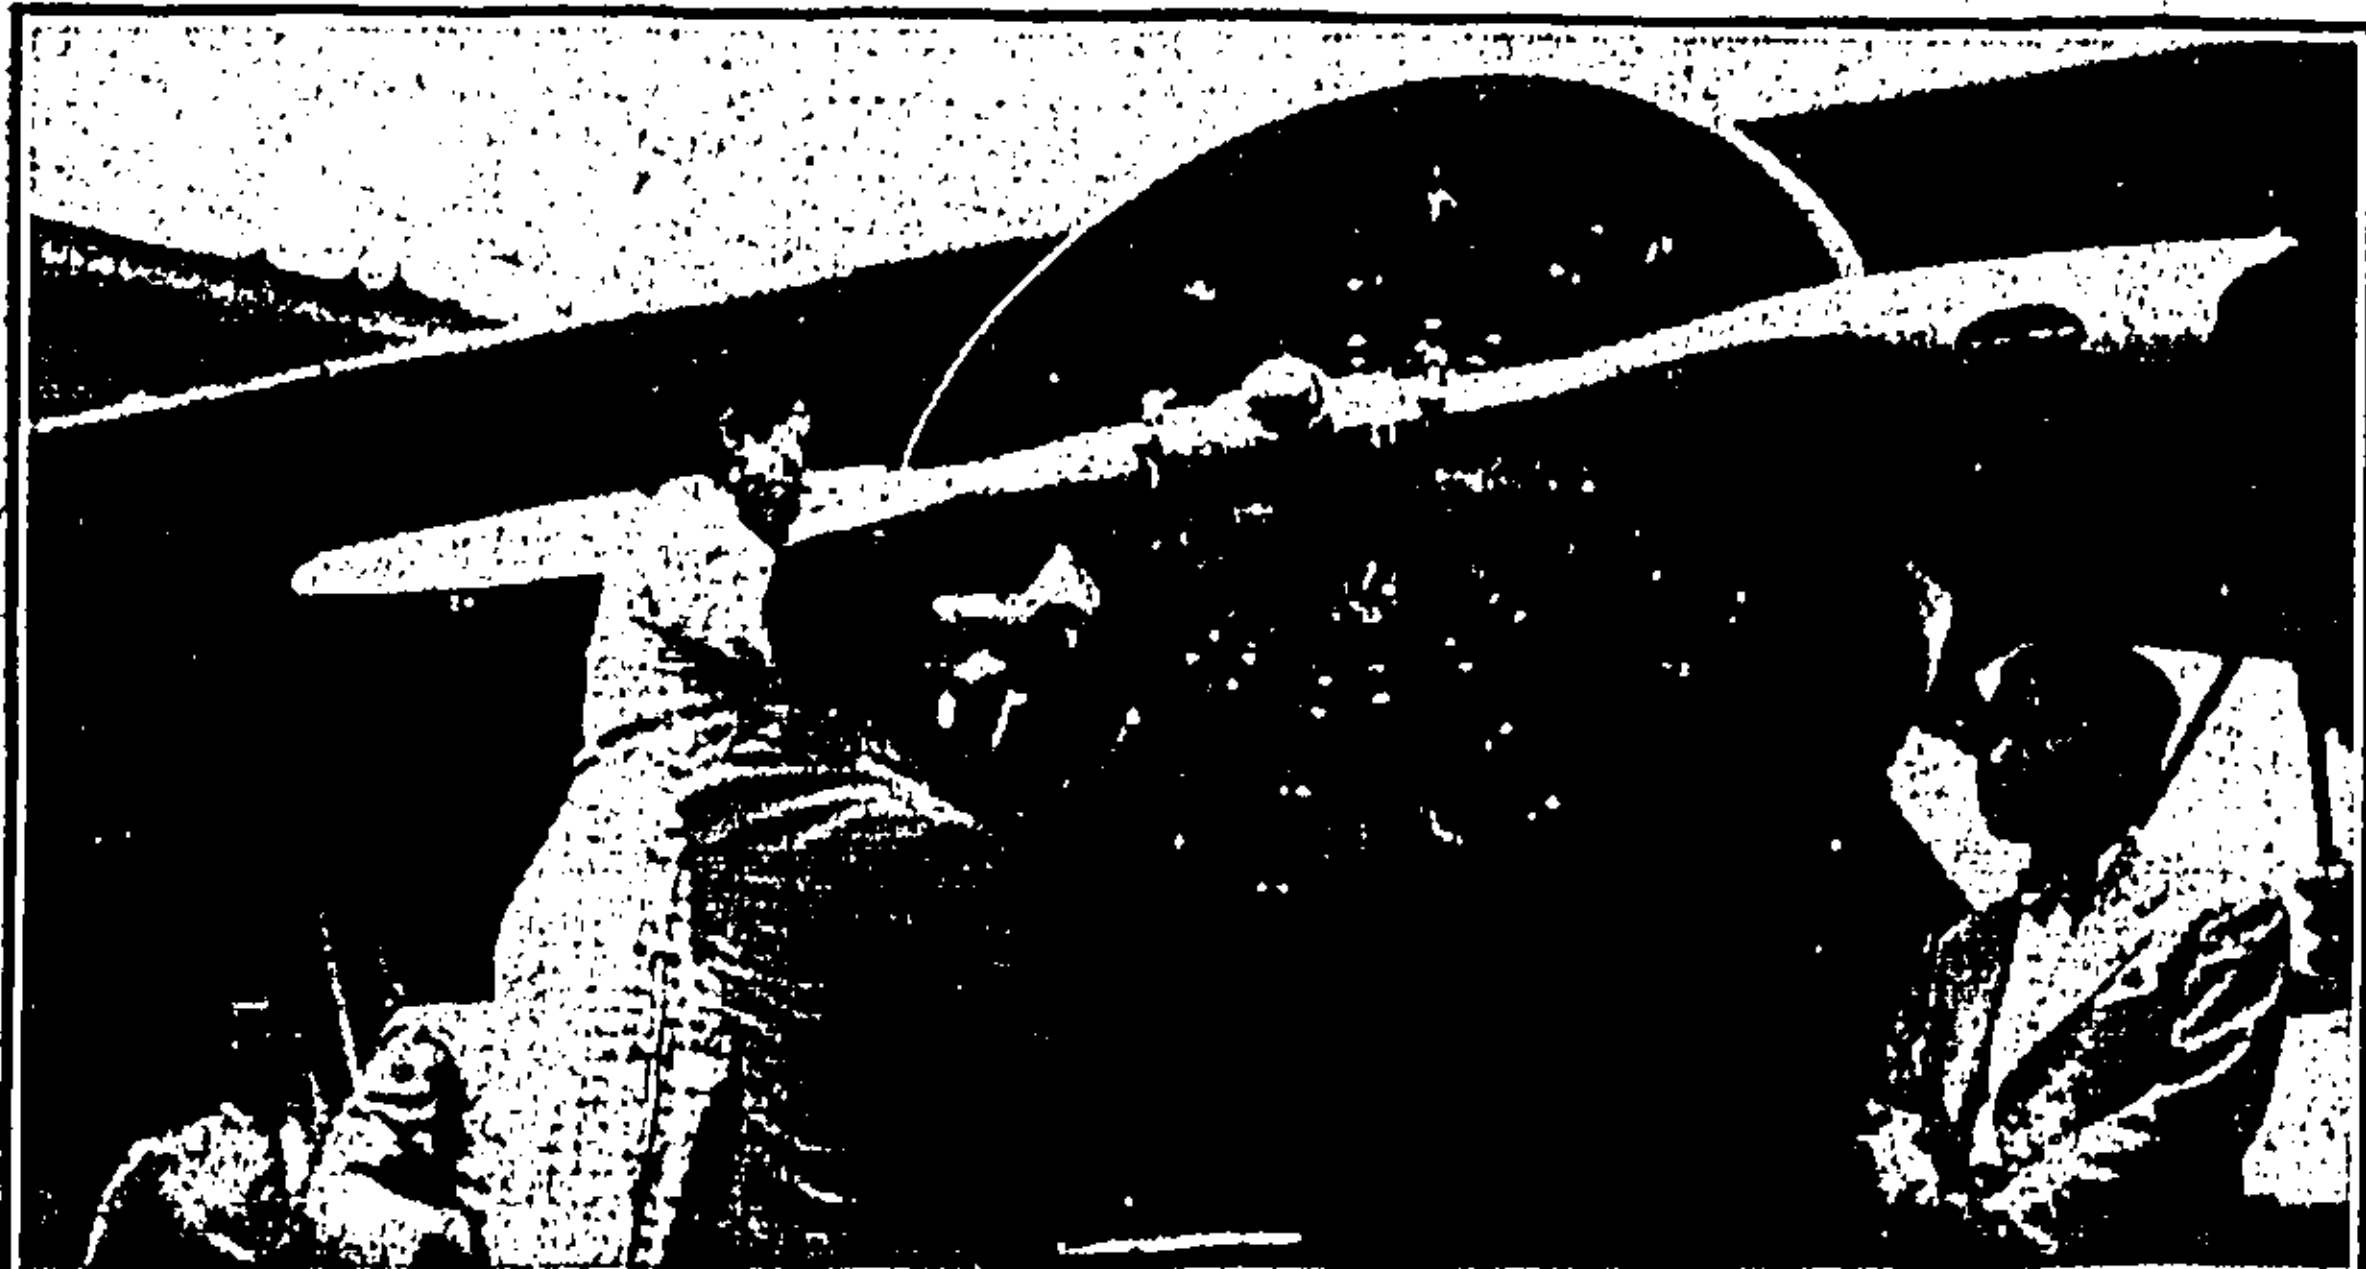

She saw him swing the slight

Before an admiring and enthusiastic assembly of more than 25,000 people at Kiangwan Race Course last week, the first of the fighting planes subscribed for by the Chinese people of this area was christened by Mrs. Wu Teh-chen, wife of the Mayor of the Greater Municipality. The new bomber was named "Greater Shanghai I." Upper picture shows Mrs. Wu performing the christening rites with a bottle of champagne. Lower picture shows, left to right, Col. H. E. Woon, Dr. H. H. Kung, Mayor Wu Teh-chen and Mayor James Doollittle who thrilled the gathering with a daring aerial performance in the new machine.

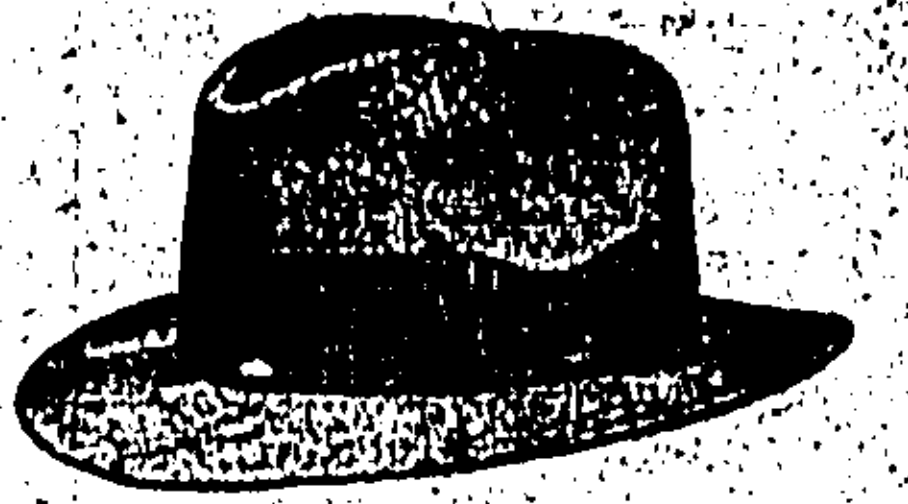

H. M. Acting Consul-General (Mr. J. W. O. Davidson) took the salute in the King's Birthday parade by British mixed forces at the Shanghai Race Course. In the top picture portion of the 2nd East Lancashires are seen passing the saluting base, and the lower depicts the Acting Consul-General about to present the M.B.E. (Military Division) to Sergeant Carroll, of the R.A.S.C.

Doing every stunt known to modern aviation above the heads of 25,000 people at Kiangwan Race Course Major Doollittle in the Curtiss-Wright bombing plane gave the crowd the thrill of their lives. Photo shows the machine flying low over a section of the gathering, who attended the christening of the aeroplant "Greater Shanghai I."

Rome. The nearest approach to a children's party which Signor Mussolini has ever given in the historic Palazzo Venezia, in which he works, took place when fifteen children of the Argentine "good-will" mission to Italy visited him at his invitation.

The children, who were of all ages, formed a line and gave Signor Mussolini a Fascist salute, which he smilingly acknowledged.

The Duce, who loves children, forgot the cares of state for a moment and chatted animatedly to the children about their own country.

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was strong yesterday. Business done: 5,810,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal reports:—The break of the dollar to new lows since the resumption of specie payments in 1879 precipitated short covering which developed into a general upward movement. Stocks made gains of from one to more than 7 points reaching the best levels since 1931. A strong wheat market due to heat also helped to strengthen the market.

MONEY AND THE CONFERENCE

Undoubtedly the biggest task before the World Economic Conference is the devising of a common plan for increasing the circulation of money by a more liberal credit policy and thereby assisting towards the restoration of higher commodity prices. Too much emphasis cannot, however, be laid upon the fact that credit facilities will not achieve the purpose of raising price levels unless a demand for credit is created and the most obvious methods of producing this demand are such plans as those advocated by Mr. J. M. Keynes and President Roosevelt for great undertakings in public expenditure. The difficulties in this connexion are the dangers of causing a deterioration of governmental credit. In fact, no matter from what angle the problems of the Conference are approached, the student is thrust back upon the close relationship between the value of Money and public confidence, and the weaknesses of the monetary system are exposed. Money, the history of which has been interestingly described by Mr. Cope in the articles he has been writing for the Telegraph, has come under criticism from all quarters. As a medium of exchange, it appears to be on strike, or, at least, playing cat's canny. As a measure of value it is this today and that tomorrow. Its circulation is sluggish; it hides its seriously diminished head in bank vaults and balances, in irredeemable securities and refuses to come out, coax men never so coaxingly. Not infrequently, it vanishes in a night—dissipated forever, whether as a medium of exchange or a measure of value. In brief, money has got out of hand. What is to be done about it? Ought we to throw—can we throw—money on the dump heap and adopt the technocratic "erg" or "joule" instead? Or ought we to put money in its place as servant

Instead of master? And if so, how? In so far as an erg, or even a joule, is a measure of value, it remains money. While we have anything to exchange, we have to have a medium of exchange—again, money. The barter establishments dotted about the United States may do without visible money, but the idea remains. It is even the very basis of the transaction. And it is paradoxically true that at the precise moment money has taken the bit between its teeth and bolted, there are more goods to be exchanged, and therefore a greater need for a reliable medium of exchange, than ever before in the known history of the world. The trouble in fact is not money, it is man's method of managing money. The world—indeed, nearly every individual in the world—is afraid of what money, or the lack of it, can do to him. The first thing, then, is to get rid of the fear. And having got the whip hand—it will be a new experience for him—man must then fasten a new set of reins and re-harness the runaway to its proper business of turning the wheels of prosperity. Obviously, it can be done. It may involve a drastic overhauling of existing monetary system. It may mean revisiting our ideas of the way money is put into circulation. There may have to be new methods of bookkeeping, even of banking, so as to enable the impatiently eager consumer to consume. All these are matters for the monetary expert. The job of the man in the street is to make crystal clear the goal he intends should be reached. He must say unmistakably that money's only legitimate function is to insure that there shall no longer be poverty in the midst of plenty, and that the idle wheels of silent machines shall whirl busily to produce the goods of which countless people stand in stark need. The goods are there; the demand is there; only the connecting link is missing.

Holidays for Wives

The world has always leaned toward a dramatization of its problems. Humanity likes to set up lay figures to represent some class or section to which its attention has been drawn. So we have the man with the hoe, the man in the street, the unknown soldier and, more lately, the forgotten man. It has remained for Sweden to call attention to a group that is wider than any yet covered by a lay figure; a group that stands behind all the four mentioned above, that has suffered the stress of all these classes without any of the publicity they have been accorded. There has been a word of tribute now and then, but for the most part a wide and deep silence. The General Swedish Electric Company on the occasion of its fiftieth anniversary announces that it has set aside a fund of $100,000 to provide vacations for the wives of small salaried employees of the company. In taking this step the Swedish concern decided that those who work behind the scenes, benefiting the company indirectly by looking after the men, were most in need of consideration. It was found that wives seldom had time for a complete rest. Someone should outline a figure to represent the woman behind the factory whistle, whose work begins long before the workers take their places at machine or bench, and continues long after spindle and lathe are silent; whose work year runs into 365 days, who is the first one to feel the pinch when work fails, and the last one to benefit by a pick-up. Should such a figure be drawn in its proper scale, it would perhaps make pygmies of the four already mentioned.

WORLD CRISIS

IV: TASK FOR THE WORLD ECONOMIC CONFERENCE

BY FREDERICK COPE, A.M.I.E.E.

Preceding observations have given a rough outline of our present financial system, and of what is meant by goods and services. It has been shown that in the beginning, goods and services were the first, and only, consideration.

Production, and exchange of goods, proceeded without the use of money. Money was introduced to facilitate the production and the exchange of goods and services, a servant, as it were, to this main purpose.

But has Money maintained this position? Unfortunately, no. It has long since overstepped its job, and usurped the position of its master, and to-day largely tyrannises the main purpose. It has taken upon itself a function which was not probably thought of at the time of its introduction.

It was very early demonstrated that the convenience of money forms enabled an accumulation of the right to possess Physical Wealth, and from this emerged its all important attribute, its power to confer upon its owner a strong influence on the affairs of the world.

In proportion to the amount of our possession, we each have a little influence. Innumerable small company shareholders have their influence over affairs within their sphere. Large shareholders and directors more so. The controllers of Companies may have their influence over many phases of economic policy.

At the peak of this power, we have the ultra-financier, at whose decision, based not on human needs, but on money considerations only, banks open or close, railways operate or are shut down, factories produce goods or they do not. The power we have conceded to money, makes the possessors of large quantities virtually the controllers of the destinies of peoples.

Americans invest money in Germany and, consequently, have their influence in degree on the economic life of the Germans. A German likewise invests in South America. An Englishman in France, and so on. Such is the power of money, which is given to it by popular opinion.

MONEY TALKS.

In the vernacular of a certain part of England there is a saying "Money talks; it speaks all languages, and knows all religions."

But money has not of itself substantial value, withdraw confidence, and its value vanishes. At one period a German Mark would buy goods. One year later, it was worthless, and no goods could be obtained in exchange.

Foreign investments are only of worth, as long as there is a reasonably contented people in that country.

With the discontent arising from continual unemployment in every country in the world, money is in danger of losing its one and only support—Confidence.

Physical Wealth is of real utility value; it has substance. We can live on it, but not on money. When the present day basis of money has vanished, physical wealth will still be there.

THE TASK FOR THE ECONOMIC CONFERENCE.

Having skimmed through a few of the aspects affecting our economic life, we will now make an attempt to see exactly what is in front of the Economic Conference. In brief, it is the fact that our economic system is gradually coming to a stop, due to some basic fault. They have to find this fault; remove it, and let the economic system get in full swing again.

An economic system, we will say, is ideal when it permits of the maximum human development, and human happiness, one which will permit of the maximum satisfaction of our physical needs.

On this premise, there seems to be nothing wrong with the production aspect of our economic life. The capacity for producing physical wealth is enormous, and is multiplying.

We have never yet worked modern industry at its full capacity. As an illustration, in 1918, after 4 years of destruction, we heard the cry "the shelves of the world are empty". Industrial plant was set in motion, with half man-power, and before the end of 1920, there was a glut.

It seems that we had produced more goods than were required. Now this is a point which will have to be examined closely, because it provides us with the first clue. Was there a glut?

On our premise, there can be no such thing as real over-production until every human physical need is satisfied.

We are yet a long way from that position. What really happened was that the money system was satisfied, and in relation to money, there was a glut. This is our self-imposed limitation. Our present money system can only work successfully, when the supply of goods is restricted.

Clearly, we must look for the fault, in our money system. It has been shown, that our money is first a means of possession in title to physical wealth, and in the third place, accumulated possessions is privilege and influence in world affairs.

THIRD PROPERTY OF MONEY.

It is this third property of Money, in the last analysis, which will probably prove to be at fault. If it is here, then we have a most difficult job to face.

This third property of Money is rooted in our everyday life. Our forefathers knew it and handed down the fruits to this generation. We have known it all our lives and it is expressed in our personal make-up.

Its roots run in all directions, and a serious operation will be necessary to get them out of our economic system, so much so that it is likely that the World at large will be tempted to wait until the very last moment before undertaking the operation.

Unpleasant though it might be to admit it, there is every indication that it is this third property of Money which is at fault.

Let us attempt a rough analogy to give an illustration of the working of the present system.

A farmer possesses a piece of land. On this land he employs 100 men. Both farmer and men depend on this land for their existence. The farmer commences to grow produce. To each man, for each 50 hours labour, he gives a paper note entitling him to one measure of produce. The produce is reaped, and 50,000 measures are available. The men purchase 40,000 measures with their paper notes. Then 10,000 measures are left over for the farmer, out of which he has to live and provide seed for the succeeding crop. Providing it is a business proposition for both farmer and men, the process would be constantly repeated, and all would be well.

We will now assume the balance to be upset. The farmer employs methods by which he can dispense with 50 men. The crop is reaped, and (Continued on Page 7.)

The Very Idea!

THE UNFAIR SEX

By Mrs. Edward Kelly's Husband

IT has taken us exactly five years to find out that if married life is to succeed, there must be a lot of give and take. You give and she takes.

We never knew what happiness was until we were married. Then it was too late.

We are what you could call a married martyr. A martyr, in case you don't know it, is one who is obliged to listen to one.

Difference between a martyr and a bachelor is that a bachelor lives like a gentleman and dies like a dog. A married man lives like a dog and dies like a gentleman.

Our Henrietta is like that. Once upon a time we thought that she was the greatest little girl in the world, and we fell so hard for her that we were bruised all over.

But she's no longer little. In fact, to get more curves a man would have to marry the Repulse Bay road.

We will admit that marriage gives a man that companionship he wishes for, unless his wife is watchful. But a wife who isn't watchful is just a quixotic, foolish dream.

Take Peto's wife, for instance. She used to be a telephone operator, and the first thing she did was to give him the wrong number.

They were twin girls. Peto called them the two disasteresses.

Peto and us are alike in one respect. The only place you'll find peace in our homes is in the dictionary.

Women are what cause it. It doesn't matter whether you're married or single, there's always a woman at the bottom of things.

In Hongkong, so long as you have a motor car and plenty for cash, you'll find that a fool and his money are soon parted.

We once knew a man who, after his particular gold digger cleaned him out, stole a thousand bucks from his employer. And when she got that she put the police on to him. Imagine his embarrassment.

There's only one way to treat women. Treat 'em rough. The rougher the better. But you've got to use system.

The best system is a bottle of Johnny Walker. One whisky and we answer the wife back. Two whiskies and we're ready to fight. Three whiskies and alcohol her bluff.

Why waste your money on cheap sex literature like "Things Every Young Man Should Know" or "Married Love." Take advantage of our stupendous offer. Every reader of this column can receive free of all charge (see conditions) a magnificent, superlative, colossal, breath-taking copy of our book "Let's Collabate." Take no notice of books offered to you on the same subject by other newspapers.

Simply cut out the coupon, sign your name and address, and provided that you don't forget to post the letter, the book will be posted to you, under plain cover, if we don't forget to post it.

The only condition is that a $10 note must be pinned to each coupon. Any number of coupons over a hundred may be sent.

LORD RIDDELL'S
WAR DIARYRevelation of Cabinet Differences

London, June 9.
The war diary of Lord Riddell, published yesterday, revealed intimate details of difference between British Cabinet Ministers during the War and of the poor opinions of the Earl of Oxford & Asquith and Earl Kitchener held by their colleagues.

Mr. Lloyd George is made the dominating figure in the book, which reveals his growing friction with Lord Oxford until the latter's retirement and his lack of faith in Lord Kitchener.

On the other hand, Lord Kitchener was equally critical of his colleagues. Several times in April, 1916, Lord Riddell wrote that Lord Kitchener told him that the Cabinet did not understand the difficulties of making rifle shells, etc. and that he was being misunderstood, declaring: "When the war is over, I will shake the dust of this country off my feet and go east. The people here do not understand me, and I do not understand them."

BIG POSTER.

In October, 1914, Lord Riddell recorded that Mr. Lloyd George quoted Elizabeth Asquith, now Princess Bibo, as describing Earl Kitchener as a big poster, a large advertisement, on which Mr. Lloyd George commented: "I think she is right. He is a big man, but he does not understand English life, and whatever he may have done in the past he pays no attention to details and does not properly control his staff. He is just a big figurehead."

In April, 1915, Mr. Lloyd George complained to Lord Riddell that Lord Oxford was "treating the war as if it were home-rule of Welsh dis-establishment. He does not recognise that the nation is fighting for its life. When a subject is forced on his attention, his judgment is admirable, but he never searches out the weak places."—Reuter.

DOLLAR MARKET
NERVOUSRATE UNCHANGED
THIS MORNING

After two jumps in the course of yesterday, the dollar opened this morning at 1s. 5d. representing an advance of $\frac{3}{4}$ ths on yesterday's opening rate, but no change from the closing rate.

The local market is, however, very nervous and little business is being done.

In London, silver prices advanced slightly, on Indian and speculative buying, with the Continent sellers. After the official fixing, the market ruled quietly steady. The New York silver price remained unchanged at 37 cents.

The rapid depreciation of the American dollar in terms of sterling is causing much interest. Heavy speculation is undoubtedly responsible, and the Shanghai market is reported to be heavily overbought in U.S. dollars.

While being taken to Hospital by her husband, a woman living at Hung-ham, collapsed and died yesterday.

50,000 measures are again available. The men have now only half the purchasing power, and can buy only 20,000 measures, leaving the farmer with 30,000 measures, with which to feed himself and provide seed for the next crop. If he is unable to consume the surplus, more is left for seed purposes.

At the end of the next period, having planted extra seed, he has a much greater amount of produce, and the amount is out of all proportion to the purchasing power of the men. His surplus, is now more than he can manage, under his present system.

There are only two courses open to him—one is to destroy the surplus and the other is to increase the purchasing power by issuing more paper Notes. The latter course, because he sees no benefit to himself, he will not take, therefore he destroys the surplus.

This is exactly what we are doing to-day, decreasing purchasing power and, at the same time, attempting to invest further money to gain interest and profit. Extra money can only be made by increasing production or reducing costs. If we increase production, we have to destroy it. If we reduce costs, this in turn, reduces purchasing power. We have no way out of the difficulty. Under the existing conditions of prolific and cheap production, it is apparent that the present financial system has defeat in itself, and cannot deal with present-day conditions.

We are actually experimenting in destroying existing wealth (in the hope of creating it again for the benefit of the money system). Financially are withdrawing credits and cheque money because of the risk of financial loss. Production and trade, on account of this reduction of money in circulation (purchasing power), react by contracting in sympathy. Trade becomes less, interest and profits are less, consequently risks become greater; the financier then withdraws further credits and so on. The one is chasing the other, on a downward spiral, and ultimately, if this progression is continued, a complete stop will be reached. The only thing to prevent it is an increase in price levels.

Assume that a point is reached, before human patience has broken under the strain, by inflation of currency, or by expanding credit, we get production and money into such a relationship as would be called economically sound. Price levels would then permit of reasonable profits. Can we say, at this point, that the problem is solved? It is extremely unlikely. There is every reason to incline to the belief that as soon as there is the slightest sign of increasing demand for goods, the enormous latent strength of productive capacity will respond and swamp the market.

The balance would be upset and we should have the same problem with us again. Under present arrangements it is practically impossible to control world production.

DEFINITE PLAN.

All this difficulty comes about through what we have termed the third property of Money. It will be seen by the analogy, that with profit production it is necessary to have a definite plan. The Farmer must justify his authority, and regulate production to satisfy and not exceed demand. In the interest of the community, and of himself in the long run, he must not be permitted to play a game of "Dog in the Manger," through the power of his ownership.

Capital Investment—our third property of money. A definite amount must be reserved for seed purposes, and the rest must be consumed or utilized, in order to satisfy all conditions. Under our present system, millions have a voice in the matter of direction of what should be saved, and what should be consumed. The result is the present confusion and chaos. Money is saved for investment which should be spent naturally, instead of interest and profit, it receives the reverse—a loss.

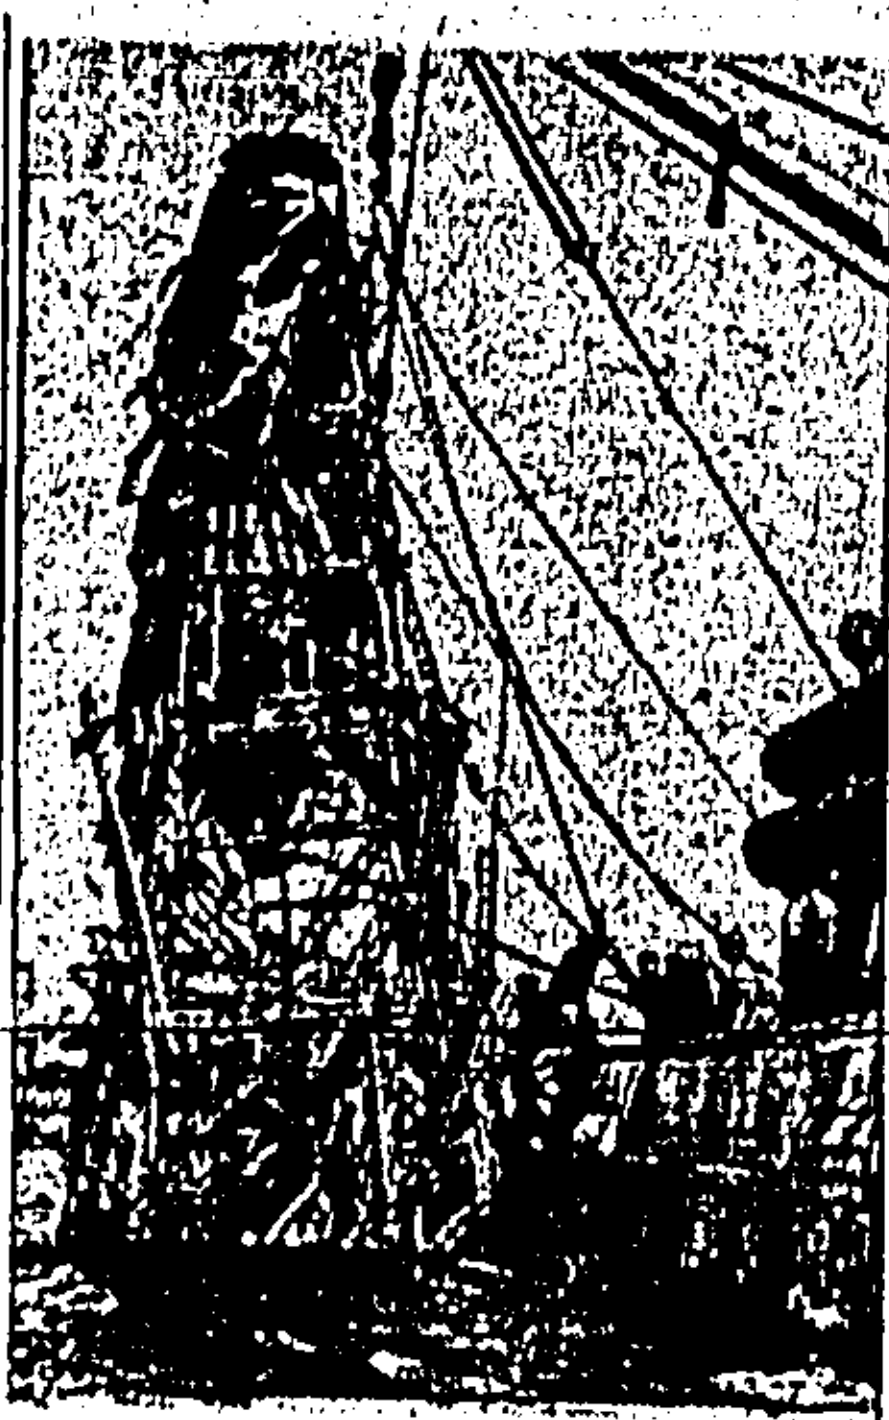

Continuing our analogy, under today's conditions, the farmer (the manipulator of capital) does just as he wishes, irrespective of the interests of the community, until as now, he has managed to get the community and himself into an economic tangle. It would seem that we shall always be in this tangle until we enforce a means for the sensible manipulation of capital.

(To-morrow's article, probably the most interesting of the series, is futuristic. It envisages the passing of a series of World Conferences, all seeking to patch up the present system and failing and deals with the speech of "a delegate of one of the great Powers at the Tenth Economic Conference" advocating a complete breakaway from current ideas.)

The following telegram has been received from the Export Manager, Studebaker Corporation, in connection with the Indianapolis 500 Mile Race.

"Studebaker scores again in Indianapolis 500 Mile Race stop 83 entries many of them costly hand built racing cars 42 qualified to start only 14 finished seven of them Studebaker powered stop five were 80% stock Studebaker entered by Studebaker everyone of five went through entire race without single repair. WAR DEBT CRISIS

Washington, June 12.
Democratic leaders of Congress, after a conference with President Roosevelt, confidently assured him that Congress would be adjourned either to-night or to-morrow, if was learned late to-day.

President Roosevelt had intimated that he would give his decision with respect to the acceptance of partial payment of Great Britain's War debt instalment, after the adjournment. At the Conference to-day, the Democrat leaders told him that should his decision in connexion with the June instalment favour a partial payment only, his stand would be greeted with a wholesale outburst of condemnation from the anti-cancellation wing.—Reuter Special.

ANOTHER EFFORT TO FORM HOCKEY ASSN:

MEETING ON JUNE 22ALL CLUBS TO BE INVITEDAffiliation Question to be RaisedDELICATE ISSUE FOR DECISION

By "Bully-Off"

At last a definite move has been made towards the formation of a local hockey board for governing the stick game in the Colony—a meeting for all hockey enthusiasts having been convened by Mr. J. E. Potter, secretary of the Hongkong Hockey Club to be held at the Volunteer Headquarters on June 22.

Every club has been invited to send its representatives and a general invitation is extended to all others interested. The primary point to be considered is whether a central body would materially benefit the game here and of this I entertain little doubt. On the face of it I think it will be readily conceded that the scheme is a laudable one for it is always in the best interests of any sport in connexion with which competitions are likely to be held to bring it under the guidance of a central body.

AFFILIATION PROBLEM.

If the meeting is in favour of the formation of such a board the first thing which will be done I understand is to affiliate to the English Hockey Association which carries with it the necessity of conforming to the E.H.A. rules. This will mean that no club member, or player may take part in any challenge cup or prize competition. It is competition for a "pot" that has done much to raise the standard of hockey in the Colony to its present level. This is evidenced in the popularity of the Mamak competition and I would therefore suggest that the promoters hesitate and consider the question of affiliation very carefully before making their decision. If the meeting should resolve not to become affiliated the Club, Army and Navy will be placed in a somewhat invidious position for they are already affiliated. It is little points like these which require the most careful consideration before definite decisions are reached.

The whole thing is a delicate proposition and one calling for a broad outlook and wise counselling.

PROFESSIONAL
FOR LONDON?OFFER TO BUY UP A
WIGAN TEAM

The record crowd which gathered at Wembley last month to see the Rugby League Cup Final has fired certain people with the ambition to introduce the game to London as a permanent attraction.

A syndicate has offered to take over the Wigan Highfield club, including its players, as the nucleus of a Rugby League club for London.

Wigan Highfield finished the season in the last place but one of the Rugby League table, winning only eight matches out of 38. Their players alone would be insufficient to give a new club any chance of making a success in London.

The syndicate which now offers to buy them up is composed of men who fully realise that other players will have to be secured.

WHITE CITY STADIUM.

It has substantial financial resources and plans to establish the new club at the White City Stadium, which has accommodation for 100,000 spectators. Its ambition is to gather together a team of super players.

Whether the Rugby League will sanction the scheme and admit a London club into membership remains to be seen.

Wigan Highfield, who are in a bad way financially, are understood to have agreed, but the Council of the League is composed of shrewd Northerners who are only too well aware of the disastrous results which attended former attempts to widen their sphere of influence in other parts of the country.

New clubs have at various times been born and died in Liverpool, Carlisle, Merthyr, Aberdare, Ebbw Vale and other South Wales towns, and the Council is sure to demand guarantees of the most stringent kind before embarking on any fresh adventure.

President, Mr. F. A. Kemp; vice-presidents, Messrs. D. W. Waterton and G. W. R. Griggs; hon. secretary, Mr. F. J. F. Evans; hon. treasurer, Mr. D. W. Waterton; asst. secretary, Mr. M. H. G. Grewal; bar steward, Mr. G. W. R. Griggs.

Representatives elected were Messrs. O. England (football), Surjit Singh (hockey), Ng Wai-lam (tennis), W. J. Chanson (basketball), M. H. Hassan ("Cosmos"), Jahan Dad (Indians), Ma Sheung-ying (Chinese).

It is not yet decided whether the Radio will be competing in the Mamak hockey competition next season. They are, I understand, awaiting the decisions of the meeting referred to above to consider the possibilities of forming a local association.

KHOOA. L. SULLIVAN PLAYS

TO TENNIS

(By "Veritas")

The Shanghai league tennis season is now well under weigh, and the city's most prominent players figure among the participants.

Names, well known for their interport associations, such as John Wade, Guy Cheng, Khoo Hoo-hye, Paul Kong, Mansel-Smith and A. L. Sullivan, appear in the various teams.

Khoo, Cheng and Kong constitute the leading lights of the senior Chinese Tennis Club team which is going great guns and offering a very impressive challenge to the Japanese Tennis Club, winners of the championship for the past three years.

Against the Shanghai Cricket Club, the C.T.C., romped home to the tune of 13 sets to 2.

A. L. Sullivan, ex Shanghai and Hongkong interporter, has thrown in his lot with the Cercle Sportif Francais and against the Shanghai Recreation Club teamed up with K. Krenov, who, in memory serves me correctly, married Miss "Billie" Firth, interporter, last year.

Against John Wade and his son "H.L.", Sullivan and Krenov were last week beaten 2-6, 6-1, 8-10.

Pat Madar, interporter cricketer, is playing for the Shanghai Recreation Club in company with C. J. Smith, but they did poorly against the French pair J. Berents and A. G. Moise losing all three sets 6-4, 6-2, 7-6.

BOISEREE TURNS TO TENNIS.

Incidentally Boiseree, the Shanghai interporter, who accompanied the team to Hongkong last January, has turned to league tennis this summer. He is turning out for the Recreation Club in the second division and with Dr. Rego as his partner helped to trounce the Jewish Recreation Club last week by 15 sets to nil. Boiseree and Reigo won three sets 6-0, 6-3, 6-2.

The standings in the two divisions on Thursday last were:

COMPETING TEAMS.

The teams competing are: Division 1: Japanese Tennis Club, Chinese Tennis Club, Shanghai Cricket Club, Shanghai Recreation Club, Cercle Sportif Francais, Country Club, Columbia Country Club, Club Lusitano and Ngai Wata Kalsha.

Division 2: Cercle Sportif Francais, Shanghai Cricket Club, Police Recreation Club, Club Lusitano, German Garden Club, Bram-toco Tennis Club, Japanese Tennis Club, Russian Tennis Club, Rowing Club, Waterworks Tennis Club, Jewish Tennis Club, and Shanghai Recreation Club.

Mr. C. P. James, formerly Hon. Secretary of the Hongkong Lawn Tennis Association returned to the Colony with Mrs. James by the President Coolidge yesterday. Mrs. James who is one of the best lady tennis players in the Colony, will probably be playing for the U. S. R. C. in the mixed doubles league.

The French Grand Prix run yesterday was won by a Frenchman, the English driver, Earl Howe was seriously injured in the race by flying gravel.

TO-DAY'S LEAGUE
TENNIS"B" DIV. TEAMS
ENGAGEDU.S.R.C. MAY BE EXTENDED

Although the courts will be extremely heavy, it is hoped if no more rain falls that the majority of the games fixed for the "B" Division of the tennis league this afternoon will be played.

Chief interest is the visit of the United Services Recreation Club, potential champions, to the Hongkong Cricket Club. Last week the Cricket Club gave an excellent showing at the K.C.C., and beat one of the strongest teams it is possible for the Kowloon club to put into the courts.

Playing on their own ground this afternoon, the Cricket Club should be in the position to upset the enviable record enjoyed by the U.S.R.C. to date.

K.C.C. CHANGES.

Further changes have been made in the constitution of the K.C.C. side. "Sammy" Green has been selected and the veteran champion is teaming up with his son, D. S. Green.

Stapleton and Burnett are out, having been chosen for the "A" team and as Hambly has been robbed of D. S. Green as his partner, A. E. Collins will come into the side. Gray and Rodgers, who played together for the first time last week, retain their places.

The C.R.C., Recreation and K.C.C. appear to have fairly easy games, but the I.R.C. received a visit from South China and as mentioned before the United Services go to the Club, and in both cases the outcome is not easy to forecast.

THE GAMES.

The programme for this afternoon is:

"B" DIVISION.

C.R.C. v. University —at Causeway Bay
I.R.C. v. South China —at Sookunpoo
Civil Service v. Recreation —at Happy Valley
K.C.C. v. Graduates —at King's Park

RAIN PREVENTS PLAY.

Lawn bowls yesterday were impossible owing to the inclement weather and the heavy state of the greens. The postponed matches included the Spey Royal Cup Competition tie between the Taiikoo R. C. and the Hongkong Electric R. C. which was to have been played on the Craighower C. C. green.

No date has yet been fixed for the match, but it is probable that it will be played towards the end of the week or on Sunday, which is the last day for the completion of the first round matches.

To-morrow the tie between the Craighower C. C. and the Royal Hongkong Yacht Club will be played off on the Police green. The following will be the two opposing rinks:

Bowling matches arranged to be played at the Police Green and the Craighower C. C., Happy Valley, yesterday afternoon, had to be postponed on account of the unfavourable weather.

"A splendid idea. Not only would I be willing to play a match with Mrs. Helen Wills Moody anywhere and at any time, but it would give me immense pleasure to meet my great opponent of seven years ago on the court again.

Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen was quite excited when she gave a reply to the suggestion that she should meet Mrs. Moody, the Wimbledon lawn tennis champion, when she arrives in London to defend her title this month.

Mrs. Moody has already expressed her willingness to meet Mlle. Lenglen in a month "provided the authorities approved."

The secretary of the Lawn Tennis Association states that no application for a match in London had been made.

Permission would have to be sought from the amateur bodies of France and America, and the country in which the match would take place, before such a contest between an amateur and professional were possible.

The first and last time Mrs. Moody and Suzanne Lenglen met on the court was at Cannes in 1926 when the Frenchwoman, then in her prime, won 6-3, 6-4.

figure of her mother over the running board. As in a dream, she followed him.

"That's right. You hold her head against your shoulder. She's just a bit faint. We'll stop by my uncle's office and get her something."

The car flew along. Monnie was conscious of curious faces along the way. How he had found her—how he had known where she was to be found or what the trouble was, she didn't even bother to consider. She was grateful from the bottom of her heart. She felt, in a very passion of gratitude, that nothing she might ever do would repay this man for his kindness.

At last they were at home. Mrs. O'Dare declaring herself able to walk now, had been assisted into the house, had willingly accepted the medicine Dr. Waterman had prescribed for her and agreed to lie down for a short time.

Monnie went back into the living room where she found Charles Eustace, very big and masculine, among the ferns and lopped curtains of her mother's domain.

"I don't know how to thank you. I suppose you've heard what fearful difficulties we're in."

If she said any more, she was certain to cry. And she must not do that. She must keep her head at any cost.

"I did. I'm frightfully sorry. Can I help?"

"You have already. Judge Cory is going down there." She ran her fingers nervously through her bronze curls. "You must believe my brother's innocent, Mr. Eustace. He couldn't have done this thing. It's not in him—I mean he simply couldn't!"

Her eyes challenged him. "I'm sure of it. Look here, I'll run down to see him—I haven't another thing to do. I'll stop by and let you know what I've found out. May I?"

How kind he was! And she had only known him a few days. There was Dan who was supposed to be in love with her and Dan hadn't telephoned—hadn't rushed to her side.

She gave him her hand. "I will thank you all my days."

He smiled at her. "It's nothing."

Alone she paced the floor. What would this mean to all of them? They had been poor, they had been shabby, but no one ever had been able to point a finger of scorn at them. What would Kay say, who was so lovely and so proud? She glanced fearfully at the clock. Kay was due home from school at any moment. Someone might call to her on the street, might terrify her.

"Ya-nah, your brother's in jail!"

And Mark, mischievous, friendly and loyal. Poor Mark! Of herself Monnie would not think. Of what

It meant to her and her hopes. She never knew, later, how she got through that dreadful afternoon. She had telephoned the store to say she wouldn't be able to come back that day. She made her mother drink some strong, hot tea. She kept up her pose of unflinching cheerfulness. When Kay and Mark came in she drew them aside and told them the story as kindly as she could. Kay's reaction was typical.

"But, Monnie, that's rotten for us." Her pale face blazed. "I'm going to get out of this town. I'm sick of it anyway. This—this'll finish us."

Sternly the older sister reminded her. "Don't you care at all what happens to Bill?"

"Oh, Bill!" There was a world of contempt in the girl's voice. "I knew something like this'd happen, with that crowd he's been running with."

Something in her tone arrested Monnie. It wasn't just Kay's ordinary threatening voice. "What crowd?"

Kay shrugged. "Oh, if you didn't keep yourself buried like an ostrich, you'd know. That cheap crowd from the Center—that candy-shop girl—married, too."

DO YOU BUY YOUR PEN FOR BEAUTY'S SAKE?

DIFFERENT people have different reasons for selecting a pen for personal use. If you want a pen that looks like an aristocrat in your pocket, and on your desk, one that comes in many exquisite colors—then you want a Parker!

But, don't judge a pen by its appearance alone. Remember that you'll have to write a good many million words the rest of your life. More Parkers are sold than any other make because they write easily, smoothly, without pressure. That's important! You can write page after page without effort, uninterruptedly, as the ink flows from the gold point. Each Parker point, by the way, is tested 11 times!

Have your dealer show you, today, the Parker's non-breakable and leak-proof barrel. Look at the concealed button-filler, and the clip that makes it possible to keep the pen deep and secure in your pocket. ... But buy a genuine Parker. At good stores everywhere.

Parker QUINK—Poor ink can clog the finest pen. Try Quink, the quick-drying ink that is absolutely free from sediment. Flows smoothly and freely. Permanent or washable.

This was worse and worse. "You mean Bill's been running around with a married woman?" "Of course," he said. "Everybody knows it." "Don't let Mother hear you," warned Monnie with a glance at the stairs. "You stay here, I've got an important errand to do." She snatched her hat from the hall stand and ran out. She must find Charles Eustace. This woman, whoever she was, must be the client of Bill's innocence. Bill must be shielding her. That was why he wouldn't tell more about the night at Black Tree Inn. But maybe she was a woman who'd talk—and save Bill from disgrace! (To Be Continued.)

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Osmond Perkins, who distinguished himself as a picture gang-leader in Howard Hughes' "Scarface," began his professional career with the Film Guild in New York City.

He played minor roles with this company until 1924, when he accepted a stage offer and appeared with Roland Young in "Beggar on Horseback."

The following year he played three minor roles in as many stage productions. From this type of characterization he went to the other extreme, and played a series of hard-boiled parts. In the latter impersonations he seems to have found his forte, and he has been playing similar characterizations since, both on stage and screen.

One of the outstanding portrayals of his career was in "The Front Page," of Broadway in which he was the original "Walter Burns."

Howard Hughes sent him to Hollywood when he completed his engagement in "To-morrow and To-morrow," and cast him for the role of "Love" in "Scarface," which is now showing at the King's Theatre, which is the outstanding characterization of his career.

This picture has Paul Muni in the leading role with Ann Dvorak, a new leading woman, playing opposite a new type and is said to be sensational.

"Make Me a Star."

As befits a movie with the title, "Make Me a Star" there is no dearth of talent in Stuart Erwin's picture at the Queen's Theatre.

In addition to the regular cast which includes Erwin, Joan Blondell, ZaSu Pitts and Ben Turpin, Maurice Chevalier, Sylvia Sydney, Claudette Colbert, Gary Cooper, Tallulah Bankhead, Clive Brook, Frederic March, Phillips Holmes, Jack Oakie and Charlie Ruggles, appear in studio scenes which are part of the plot of "Make Me a Star."

Erwin as the movie-struck hero-worshiper who saves up his pennies as a grocery clerk in a small midwest town and goes to the film capital seeking fame in pictures, meets these various stars in the course of his wandering about the studios, seeking a job as an extra.

Joan Blondell, as a double for a screen celebrity, and herself ambitious for stellar success, takes pity on Erwin, who in just a howlered stage, and finally helps him to win a doubtful renown.

"Pack Up Your Troubles"

Had army officials refused permission to loan tanks for use in the making of the latest Laurel and Hardy feature-length comedy, "Pack Up Your Troubles," now showing at the Oriental Theatre, the picture would probably never have been filmed.

And this would have been regrettable, for the comedy is considered one of the funniest thus far produced by the inimitable comedians. In the story there is a long, humorous sequence which takes place in the front line trenches.

Laurel and Hardy are a couple of misfit buck privates. Their pal gets lost in No Man's Land, and they are ordered to rescue him. Then they become entangled in a couple of tanks, and what happens is reported to be one of the many amusing highlights of the picture.

"Symphony of Six Million"

"Symphony of Six Million," the poignant story of real people is showing for the last time tonight at the Central Theatre, co-starring the RKO-Radio Pictures' favorites Ricardo Cortez and Irene Dunne. The part Cortez plays, is that of a boy of the New York Ghetto who overcomes his sordid environment to become a famous surgeon and minister to the wants of his people. Rich in sympathy, the character is human to the core and is one to bring forth an inspired performance.

Miss Dunne's role is that of a teacher who brings to the tot of the teeming Ghetto the life and colour of the world beyond their push-cart horizon.

Running through the drama of the story, with its human problems, joys and sorrows, is the golden thread of the romance of a busy surgeon and beautiful teacher.

"Greeks Had a Word For Them"

Those who see Samuel Goldwyn's film version of the recent New York comedy stage hit, "The Greeks Had a Word For Them," will readily concede that never before has the screen seen the counterpart of the three merry maids of Broadway whose squabbles and loyalties provide the hilarity of

KOWLOON WEDDING.

AT UNION CHURCH

The wedding was quietly solemnized at the Kowloon Union Church yesterday afternoon, between Miss Emma Gallo, daughter of Mr. John Gallo of New Jersey, U.S.A. and Mr. Emil Henry Gallit, son of the late Mr. Carl Gallit, the Rev. E. G. Powell officiating.

Among those present at the ceremony were Mr. James E. Greenan, former Justice of the Peace at Nevada, Mr. John A. Richardson, son of Mr. Friend Richardson, a former Governor of California, and Mr. H. L. Dennys, a local solicitor.

The bride, who was dressed in white, was given away by her

the story. The picture, comes to the King's Theatre on Thursday.

Jean is a young lady with a disarming complex. The Greeks doubtless had a word for her, but one need not go back into the dead languages to classify such a "live one." She is what modern psychologists would call an Exhibitionist.

The story of "The Greek Had a Word For Them" is the tale of three feminine musketeers, who are "All For One and One For All," until a millionaire looms up on the horizon. Then it becomes a frantic battle of wits and words, with Madge Evans as Polaire and Joan Blondell as Schatze, trying to hold their men against the ruthless wiles of Ina Claire as Jean.

The Broken Wing.

Lupe Velez is Castilian-Mexican and was born in San Luis Potosi, of an aristocratic family of affluence and prominence, and well educated. In childhood she showed pronounced dramatic talent, and had an incessant urge to dance—a natural outlet for her youthful vigour and vibrant temperament.

Victor Fleming, who directed one of her former pictures said that "Lupe" is the best morale doctor imaginable. Whenever she is not working before the camera, she busies herself entertaining the other members of the company. Seemingly tireless, she will sing and dance for hours while everyone who is otherwise occupied, gathers around her. Gloom and that girl simply can not stay in the same vicinity.

In "The Broken Wing," which comes on Thursday to the Queen's she features with Lee Carrillo, Melvyn Douglas, and George Barbier in an intriguing sweetheart role with Spanish flavour. The similar to "Hell Harbour," "The Wolf Song," and "The Cuban," in which pictures she won the praise of critics and wide public esteem.

"Penalty of Fame"

Not only morsels of scandal, but tragedy and sudden death are incidents in the life of a New York columnist, as known in "Penalty of Fame" Universal's newspaper drama which opens at the Central Theatre to-morrow with Lew Ayres in the starring role.

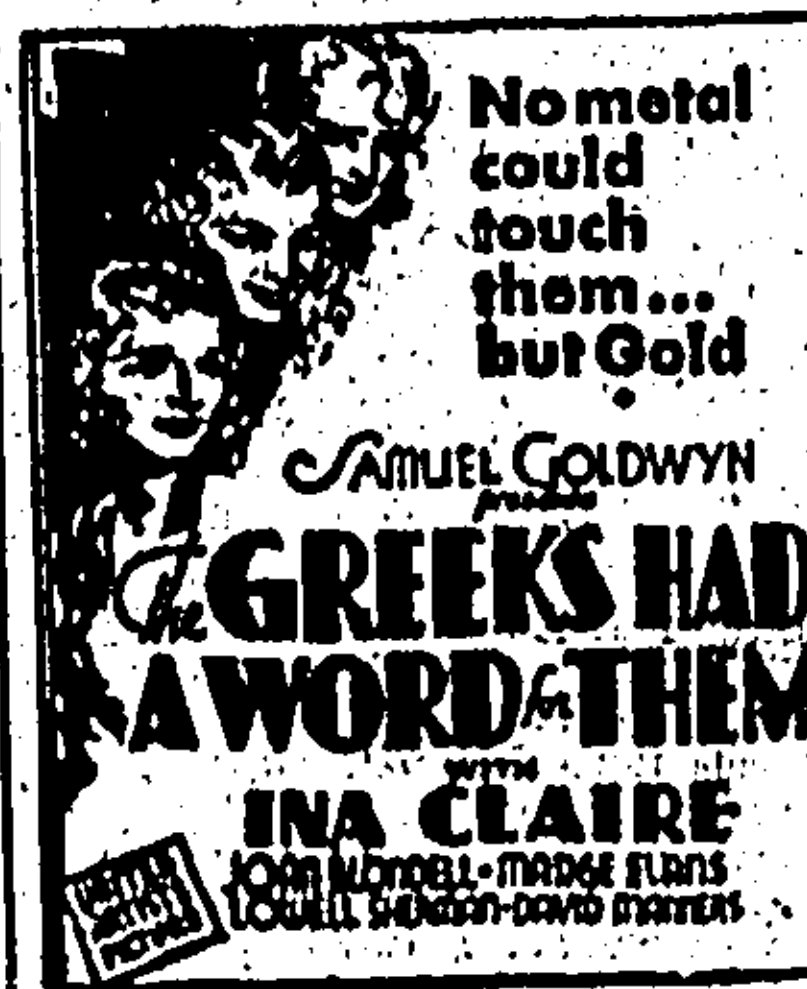

Ayres is seen in the role of a "chatter writer" on a great New York daily who supplements his activities with regular radio broadcasts, revealing indiscretions of well-known people and bringing consternation to "playboy" Broadwayites.

Ayres, in the character of Larry Wayne, devotes his attention to bits of gossip and news of spicy interest until the daughter of a millionaire is kidnapped, and he applies himself to the task of finding her. Receiving a tip from an ex-reporter who has been the source of many of his gossip items, Wayne establishes the fact that the girl has been abducted by a gang, and finally delivers to the gangster the sum of $100,000, paid as ransom by the distracted father. But the girl is not produced, and Wayne learns from the head of all the gangsters, that she will not be returned until the authorities dismiss certain indictments against the arch-criminal.

By a ruse Wayne confers alone with the powerful super crook in the latter's hotel suite. When he goes on the air that night for his regular broadcast, Wayne startles his listeners by saying, "Right now I've got a story for you that's a honey. Tonight between six-thirty and seven o'clock—I killed....." No good to tell what happened, you'd never guess but as Wayne said "It's a honey," father and was attended by Mrs. E. C. Zilkowski. CONTRACT
BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

At the recent Sims' teachers convention held at Deal, N.J., the following unusual squeeze play came up in one of the duplicate games.

I was playing at the time against Mr. P. H. Sims, who was sitting in the South and passed. I was sitting in the West and passed. Mr. Sims' partner in the North opened the bidding with one club.

While North's hand is not what you would term strong, it has sufficient strength to make a protective third hand bid. East passed and Mr. Sims now bid two no trump. His partner carried him to three no trump.

The Play

My opening lead was the ten of hearts which Mr. Sims won with the ace. He then led a small diamond which he won in dummy with the queen and then returned the deuce of diamonds, playing the jack from his own hand.

♠ 7-5-4-2	♥ K-10-9-8-5	♦ A-8-5	♣ 10

I won the trick with the ace and returned the nine of hearts but Mr. Sims won right up with the queen in dummy and then returned the seven of diamonds.

East echoed in clubs, dropping the eight. Mr. Sims won the trick with the king and returned the four of diamonds. I discarded the deuce of spades and the trick was won with dummy's nine. East discarding a spade.

Mr. Sims now realized that his only hope to take nine tricks was to develop a squeeze. He had no suit with which to squeeze himself, so he led a heart from dummy. East played the jack. Mr. Sims discarded a club from his Experience.

"I was severely ill with double pneumonia," states the Rev. D. A. C. Packard, of Natimuk, Victoria, "and afterwards, through poverty of blood, I was never really well and strong. I had a lot of study to do, and gradually lost my appetite, and could not sleep at night."

It was recommended to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after doing so for three weeks I felt definite improvement. I am glad to say that the course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did me much good by remedying these distressing complaints. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me all that is claimed for them. Otherwise, I would not give this testimonial.

The reason why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are so beneficial for such cases, as in all cases where the system is run down through impoverished blood, is simply because they are specially designed to create new supplies of rich pure blood to make good the deficiency.

In this they are definitely successful, and thus the digestive organs are strengthened, appetite increased, nervous and physical strength restored. All chemists can supply Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

own hand, and I won the trick with the king.

I now had two good heart tricks, and while I cashed these two hearts, I was accomplishing Mr. Sims' purpose of squeezing my partner. On the first heart lead my partner discarded the three of clubs, but the second heart lead squeezed him.

He was down to the king, ten and nine of spades and the king and five of clubs. He could not discard a club or dummy's ace and queen would be good, so he was forced to discard the nine of spades. Mr. Sims discarded two clubs from his hand.

I then led the ten of clubs which Mr. Sims took with the ace in dummy and now won the last three tricks with his spades.

FENG CAPITULATES

AGREES TO GIVE UP
CHARHAR

Peking, June 12.

General Feng Yu-hsiang's latest adventure appears to have ended with his capitulation to Nanking pressure.

In another circular telegram issued to-day, he declares that he is working neither with Japan nor Russia and is perfectly willing to hand over the control of Charhar to the Central Government.

A despatch received from the delegates to the Kalgan conversations with Feng are considered satisfactory by official circles here.

Meanwhile, General Ho Ying-ching is moving three divisions of troops towards Charhar, apparently to ensure the observance of the Nanking policies and to keep an eye upon Feng.—Reuter.

TERRIBLE STORM

THIRTY DROWNED IN TAIYUANFU

Taiyuanfu, June 12.
Taiyuanfu, the capital of Shanxi Province near Peking, has been hit by a disastrous rain and snow storm, commencing Saturday morning. Parts of the city have been flooded many feet with water and a great portion was covered with snow a foot deep which almost unprecedented at this time of year.

Thirty residents were drowned
until yesterday afternoon. Twenty of the victims were swept from their houses into the flooding river, which inundated many residences. Telephone and telegraph communications suffered and were interrupted for hours on Saturday and Sunday.

The rainstorm abated this morning and telegraph communication with Peking were then resumed.

SECURITY DEPOSIT CLAIM.

DEFENCE PLEA FAILS ON EVERY GROUND

Judgment for plaintiff with costs was given by Mr. Justice Lindell at the Supreme Court yesterday afternoon in the case in which the late of 51, Water Street sued Chan Lai-wan and Wang Lung-shih, both of the See Long Firm, of 28, Bonham Strand East, for the return of $1,000 alleged to be the deposit as security for the payment of rent.

The plaintiff in the action were represented by Mr. P. H. Sin (Messrs.
A. E. Hall and Co.), Mr. F. C. E.
Rendall (Messrs. Russ and Co.)
appeared for the defendants.

In a written judgment His Lordship said inter alia: The plaintiff, as lessee, here sues his lessors for the return of a deposit of $1,000 made by him as security for the performance of his covenants under the lease.

In October 1928, the defendants as owners of the property known as 51, Water Street, mortgaged that property to Li Yat-sang and others to secure an advance of $20,000, no express power being reserved to the mortgagees in the deed of mortgage to lease any part of the property.

In November 1928, some six weeks after the mortgage had been registered the defendants demised the ground floor premises of No. 51 to the plaintiff for a term of five years.

There is no evidence to show whether the mortgagees and notice of the demise and the lease makes no mention of the mortgage.

Quiet Enjoyment.

In the lease the lessors expressly covenant inter alia that the lessee (the plaintiff) shall have quiet enjoyment and also to refund at the expiration of the term the sum of $1,000 deposited by him with them as security for the observance of his covenants and during the continuance of the term to pay him interest thereon at the rate of 6% per calendar month.

As a matter of convenience it was arranged that the lessee should receive his interest by deducting $6 a month from the rent payable under the lease.

In July 1929 the defendants made a further charge on the property to secure a further advance of $3,000 from Li Yat-sang and others.

In November 1929 the defendants assigned their interest in the property to Chu Sam and Hong Yee subject to the plaintiff's rights under the lease, and to the mortgage and further charge. Chu Sam was introduced to the plaintiff as his new landlord; plaintiff paid rent to him and by arrangement with him continued to deduct therefrom as before $6 per month, the amount of interest due on the deposit.

In May, 1930, Chu Sam and Hong Yee in turn assigned their interest, subject only to the mortgage and further charge and otherwise free from encumbrances, to one Fung Shuk-tun. Fung in his turn allowed the plaintiff as his tenant to deduct $6 per month from his rent.

In July, 1931, the plaintiff received formal notice from Messrs. Lo and Lo that the mortgagees (the present defendants) having made default in payment of interest on the mortgage, he should in future pay his rent to the mortgagees, Li Yat-sang and others, and as from August 1931, plaintiff paid his rent to them accordingly.

Liability Repudiated.

The mortgagees expressly repudiated any liability to the plaintiff under the lease but allowed him to remain in occupation of his premises at a reduced rent, and apparently as a tenant from month to month.

After seeking in vain the return of his deposit from Fung Shuk-tun, plaintiff instituted these proceedings.
The first point taken for the defence is this: Inasmuch as the plaintiff's possession of the demised premises has not been disturbed and his term has not yet expired, his claim is premature. With this contention I cannot agree. At common law, which governs the point in Hongkong where a demise of mortgaged property has been effected without his consent, the mortgagee on taking possession is entitled to evict the tenant as a trespasser.

There is no direct evidence whether or no the mortgagees consented to the original demise, but they appear, after they took possession in 1931, to have disclaimed all obligation to plaintiff under the lease, and I must assume that they were legally justified in so doing. From that moment therefore plaintiff was entitled to regard the lease as terminated and to demand the return of his deposit. Hence this action is not premature.

The second question is whether the defendants still remain liable to the plaintiff under the covenant to repay
the $1,000 deposit.

My opinion favours the plaintiff.
The only point remaining is whether the acquiescence of the plaintiff and of the lessors' assignees in the arrangement, whereby the plaintiff continued to get his interest by means of deductions from his rent, effected a novation of the original contract concerning the deposit.

There was clearly no novation of the original lease agreement in toto; otherwise novation would arise whenever the interest of either lessor or lessee under a lease was assigned to another.

On all grounds then I find that the defence fails. There must be judgment for the plaintiff for claim and costs.

New York, June 13.

COMPLETE DEFAULT of the British debt instalment to the United States is now considered probable, unless last night's Cabinet meeting reached a fresh decision, according to what is described as an authoritative statement made in United States quarters in London, quoted in an Associated Press copyright despatch published here.—Reuter.

CONGRESS HANGS ON

REFUSES TO TAKE HINTS

NO ADJOURNMENT YET

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic
Messages Ordinance, 1891. Received June 13, 10.50 a.m.)

Washington, June 12.
The House of Representatives has adjourned but only until noon to-morrow, thus blocking the possibility of ending the present session of Congress to-night as President Roosevelt had desired.

President Roosevelt informed the leaders of Congress last week, that in order to secure the adjournment of Congress last week, he would not seek authority to negotiate tariff pacts.

Congress appears to be deliberately refusing to adjourn, suspecting it would seem, that President Roosevelt has ulterior motives in desiring to bring the session to an end.—Reuter.

MRS. LANDAU OUT OF HOSPITAL

Case Against Mr. Bailey to Begin on Monday

Hearing in the case against Mr. H. P. Bailey of the General Electric Company, charged with driving a motor car dangerously, failing to stop and failing to report an accident, has been fixed for 2.30 p.m. on Monday next.

Inspector C. F. Alexander informed his Worship at the Central Police Court this morning that Mrs. Landau, the victim of the accident, was discharged from hospital yesterday evening.

The defendant is represented by Mr. D. B. Evans and Mr. H. A. de B. Botelhol is watching the case on behalf of Mrs. Landau.

CHEAPER TAXI SERVICE RUMOUR

No Confirmation From Hotel Company

There appears to be no ground for the rumour being persistently circulated in the City that following their relinquishment of the main bus services on the Island, the Hongkong & Shanghai Hotels, Ltd., have in contemplation a scheme for providing the Colony with cheap taxi transportation.

Inquiries from official sources, including the Head Office of the Company in Exchange Building, failed this morning to secure confirmation of the report. Officials of the Company declared they had no knowledge of such an undertaking, and that it was also a rumour as far as they were concerned.

London, June 13.

Another hurried meeting of the British Cabinet assembled at No. 10, Downing Street at eleven o'clock last night to discuss the war debts situation.

Another despatch was received, it is believed, from Sir Ronald Lindsay, outlining the progress of conversations in Washington.

No decision was reached by the Cabinet. It is understood that the conversations in Washington are still continuing.

CONFLICTING REPORTS.

Meanwhile, reports from the United States regarding the latest position are very conflicting.

A Washington report states that following a close study of the legality of accepting part payment on the instalments due on June 15, it is believed that President Roosevelt is ready to take whatever he can get without prejudice to the legal rights of the United States.

At the same time, the New York newspapers quote a high French authority in London as saying that Washington has refused the British offer of a ten per cent. payment on the debt instalment.

FRENCH ATTITUDE.

There is reason to believe that France does not intend to make any effort to meet the war debt instalment due on June 15, or to pay off any of the arrears on the December instalment.

Two reasons are advanced for this attitude. It is stated that the French Government hold the belief that Washington would prefer to be presented with default than to be asked, at this moment, to revise the debt agreements. President Roosevelt, it is said, does not wish to test the strength of the opposition to revision at this stage, and would prefer to face Congress with "they won't pay" rather than with "I have agreed to reduce payment to so much."—Reuter.

JACKIE BROWN RETAINS HIS TITLE

Flyweight Championship of the World

London, June 12.

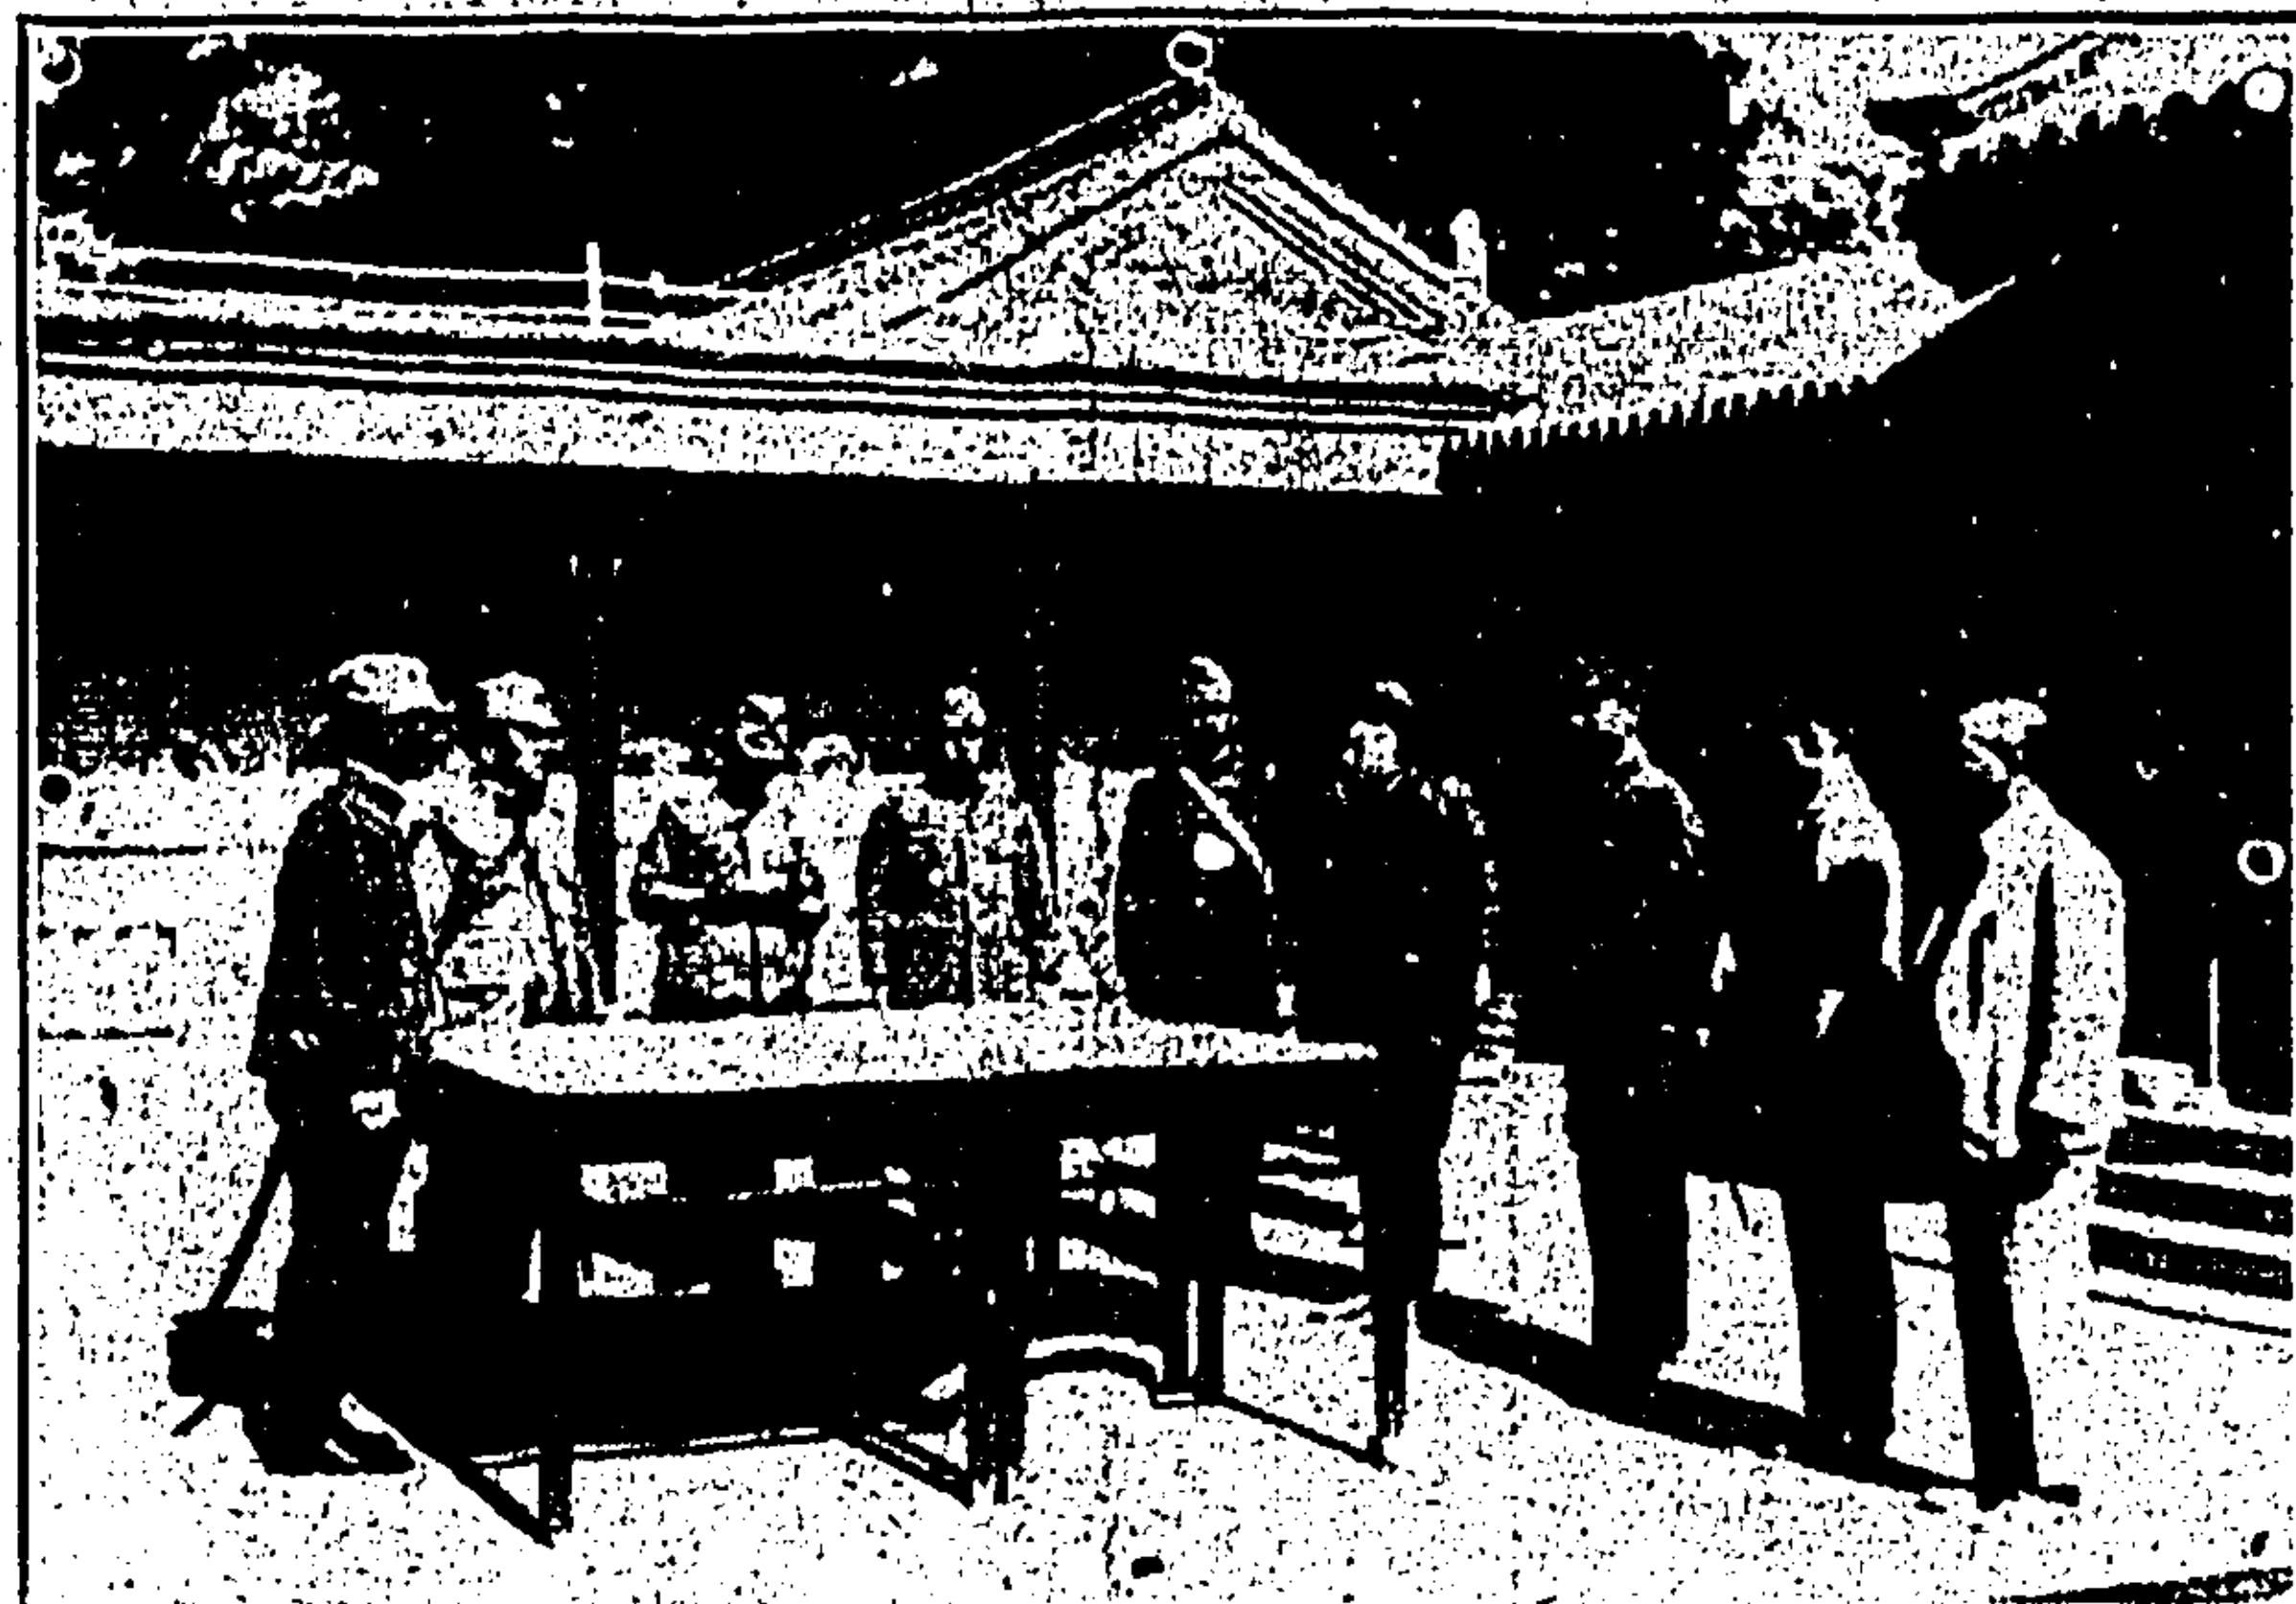

Jackie Brown, the British boxer, is still flyweight champion of the world.

To-night at Olympia he defended his title in a fifteen rounds fight with Valentin Angelmann of France and beat his opponent on points after the match had gone the full distance.—Reuter.

BANTAM CHAMPION.

Olympia also saw Johnny King, British Bantamweight champion win the British Empire title and the Empire Lonsdale belt when he beat Bobby Leitham, Canadian title holder on points in a fifteen round contest.

Len Harvey won the British light-heavyweight championship, and Lohndale Bolt when he outpointed Eddie Phillips in a fifteen round scrap.—Reuter.

Madrid, June 12.

Spain's new cabinet has been formed following the resignation of the previous Government owing to President Zamora's refusal to accept a proposal to re-constitute the cabinet without consulting other groups.

Senor Azana, the late Premier, is again Prime Minister and Minister for War, whilst Senor De los Rios is Foreign Minister and Senor Venutales Minister for Finance.

President Zamora was recently the central figure in the political embroglio, when after much hesitation, he signed a Bill for the confiscation of all church property.—Reuter.

SIR ROBERT HO TUNG IN LONDON

London, June 13.

Sir Robert Ho Tung accompanied Mr. T. V. Soong, Mr. Quo Tai-chi and Dr. W. W. Yen to a British Government banquet held last night.

The Prime Minister, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, presided over the gathering, at which the leading members of the Economic Conference delegations were also present.

WORK BEHIND THE SCENES

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic

LONDON, JUNE 12.

WORK UPON THE BAFFLING PROBLEMS CONFRONTING THE WORLD ECONOMIC CONFERENCE HAS ALREADY COMMENCED BEHIND THE SCENES, ALTHOUGH THE NEXT FEW DAYS WILL BE SPENT IN PLenary SESSION, DURING WHICH SPEECHES WILL BE MADE BY THE LEADERS OF THE SIXTY SEVEN DELEGATES.

The Conference, as a whole, is impressed with the seriousness of the tasks before it. It is generally felt that upon its success depends the ordered progress of the world in the years to come.

In some quarters, a feeling of pessimism seems to prevail, although, in an interview with Reuter, Mr. Soong said he was of opinion that it was too early to express either optimism or pessimism. He stressed that if the Conference failed it would mean the rapid growth of economic nationalism.

M. LITVINOFF'S PESSIMISM

Mr. Soong expressed his satisfaction at the composition of the Bureau of the Conference, comprising representatives of sixteen nations under the chairmanship of Mr. Ramsay MacDonald.

He said it seemed to be the most representative body possible.

M. LITVINOFF, CYNIC.

M. Litvinoff, the Soviet Foreign Commissar, and the principal Russian delegate to the Conference, foreshadowed that he would make some concrete proposals in the early stages of the Conference.

He was not, in any way, inclined to be optimistic, however. He preferred to wait before pronouncing any sort of judgment in view of the fact that many recent international conferences, which opened with equally sincere expressions of goodwill, ended negatively, even disastrously.—Reuter.

TWO COMMISSIONS.

London, June 12.
Following the plenary meeting of the Conference, the Bureau, comprising sixteen representative nations, held a private meeting at which it was decided to establish two commissions, the first to study the monetary problems before the Conference and the second, the economic problems, such as tariffs,

"LEG-THEORY" BOWLING UPHELD

M.C.C. REPLY TO AUSTRALIA

READY TO DISCUSS ISSUES

BARRACKING BANE

London, June 13.

The leg-theory bowling controversy has passed into a new stage as the result of a long discussion by the Committee of the Marylebone Cricket Club.

This type of bowling is now finally upheld by M.C.C. which has addressed a seven-hundred word cable in reply to the Australian Board of Control's protest against "body-line" bowling.

The M.C.C. state the term "body-line" appears to imply a direct attack by the bowler upon the batsman and that such implication, applied to any English bowling in Australia, is improper and incorrect.

Such action by any bowler would be an offence against the spirit of the game and would be immediately condemned.

QUITE LEGITIMATE.

The practice of bowling on the leg stump, with a field placed on the leg side is quite legitimate and has been in force for many years. The new law recommended by the Australian Board of Control is considered impracticable as it would place an impossible task upon umpires.

WATCHING THIS SEASON.

The Committee of the M.C.C. have had no reason to give special attention to the leg theory as practised by fast bowlers, but they are prepared to watch carefully during the present season for anything which might be regarded as unfair or prejudicial to the best interests of the game.

BARRACKING COMPLAINT.

During the last tour of the M.C.C. team in Australia, the Committee adds, the barracking of players became thoroughly objectionable and unless this is stopped or greatly moderated in Australia, it is difficult to see how the continuance of the representative matches can serve the best interests of the game.

The Committee concludes by inviting the Australian Board of Control to send representatives of Australian cricket to a conference on these matters.—Reuter.

WOMAN FLYER MISSING

WHILST ON BUDAPEST- CROYDON FLIGHT

London, June 12.

Mrs. Bonny, a prominent aviator, who was expected to arrive at Croydon aerodrome to-night from Budapest, is reported to be missing.

No news of her has been received since she left the Hungarian capital on a flight to England, and grave fears are entertained for her safety.—Reuter.

FAIR TO SHOWERY

The Royal Observatory reports that pressure is highest in the Pacific to the north-east of the Bonins, and relative low over China generally.

Local forecast:—South or variable winds, moderate; fair to showery.

HAILSTONES AS BIG AS EGGS

CLOUDBURST ADDS TO DAMAGE

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic
Messages Ordinance, 1891. Received June
13, 11.45 a.m.)

Peking, June 13.

Hailstones as big as chicken's eggs thundered down upon Taiyuan during the week-end, causing enormous damage.

The hailstorm was followed by an almost equally severe rainstorm, simply swamping the entire district, and causing floods in the city's suburbs, in which many people are reported to have been drowned.

The hailstorm, with huge stones, poured down without a moment's intermission for forty-five minutes, and during this time, much property was destroyed, and most of the fruit and other crops were completely ruined.

The terrifically heavy rains must have brought down at least twenty inches in the space of a few hours. The drainage system was hopelessly inadequate to cope with the cloudburst and many houses were inundated and wrecked.—Reuter.

UNUSUAL PEKING WEATHER.

Peking, June 13.

North China is experiencing the wettest summer ever remembered. At a time when Peking is usually suffering from blistering heat, summer clothes are conspicuous by their absence.

The night temperature is well below 30 Fahrenheit, while the maximum during the day is about sixty degrees.—Reuter.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

NEW COIFFURES

(From a Paris Correspondent)

The leading Paris coiffeurs have decided that the natural shape of a woman's head must be shown, but with plenty of curls either round the ears or low down on the nape of the neck, which makes all the difference between the present style and the "boyish" crops which were favoured some years ago.

However, the debutant crop of the season exhibits many bobs as well as tidy little knob coiffures.

A remarkable departure is that many of the newest styles in coiffure favour a parting, either in the middle or slightly at the left side of the head. This parting is taken right back to the crown of the head, and the hair is waved down on either side to the ear, where ringlets, which are distinctly early Victorian in their effect, cluster, so that only the base of the ear is visible. Ethereal hairpins made of the very finest wire, quite unobscurable and certainly invisible, are being used by the coiffeurs to keep unruly waves in place. If you want to believe that you will go down to your grave without hairpins, you will be disillusioned.

An important development is the return of the short sleeves and even of sleeveless frocks. Many summer dresses are going to be worn without sleeves. A new sleeve which is interesting may be sketched as follows:—The material winds round the arm from shoulder to elbow and then falls in a large square.

Some of the new sleeves are very tight at the top and widen out a little above the elbow in enormous flounces.

FASHION NOTES

(From A Paris Correspondent)

Sleeves are again all important. There is a newcomer, a full three-quarter sleeve which will be used on semi-tailored frocks in a way to give a totally new effect and a hint of flamboyance, which is very becoming to the woman with a slim figure.

Dressmakers cannot ignore the importance of the full sleeve, but the fullness is invariably nearer the wrist and elbow than the shoulder.

The waistline is a thorn in the side of the Paris dressmaker. One famous house, who boldly dropped it to the hips last summer, is now frankly bringing it up again.

A second designer who brought in a tight, high line, is thinking twice about it for the spring.

The general tendency is to keep the waistline on the upward trend. Yet there is no reason to think that the so-called natural waistline will be general this year.

The most usual place is the very top of the hip-bone, particularly when there is a belt. Waists will be varied enough to please the most difficult woman, and the same thing applies to the jackets and coats which are being made.

Very arresting is the new regarding the necklines for spring and summer. These have crept up to the neck both for evening and day wear. Sometimes one sees frocks draped right up to the neck in front—this for evening wear—while the back is very low. Another neck line is tied high up round the throat.

SAVOURY RECIPES

Do You Like Spaghetti
and Meat?

Spaghetti and Veal

Stew 1lb. of veal very gently in some stock, with some sweet herbs, a shallot, and some salt and pepper to taste. Cook until tender. Meanwhile cook some spaghetti in salted water until quite soft. Then strain. When the veal is tender pour enough of the gravy over the spaghetti to moisten. Heat the spaghetti up with salt and pepper to taste. Put the veal on a dish and serve with the spaghetti piled round.

Spaghetti and Beef

If fresh celery cannot be obtained, celery in tins can be used. Wash the celery and cut into lengths about three inches. Put them into a casserole, with about half a pound of beef skirt cut into small pieces. Add to these about four ounces of spaghetti that has previously been boiled in slightly salted water for about ten minutes.

Cook these together in moderate heat for about an hour and 15 minutes, adding a seasoning of pep-

Corned Beef and Spaghetti

Cook some spaghetti until soft. Drain the water off. Return to saucepan, add enough fresh hot water to moisten, and one meat-cube. Cook for five minutes stirring thoroughly to mix in the meat cube. Meanwhile, have some tinned peas cooking according to directions given on tin. Strain the peas and keep them hot.

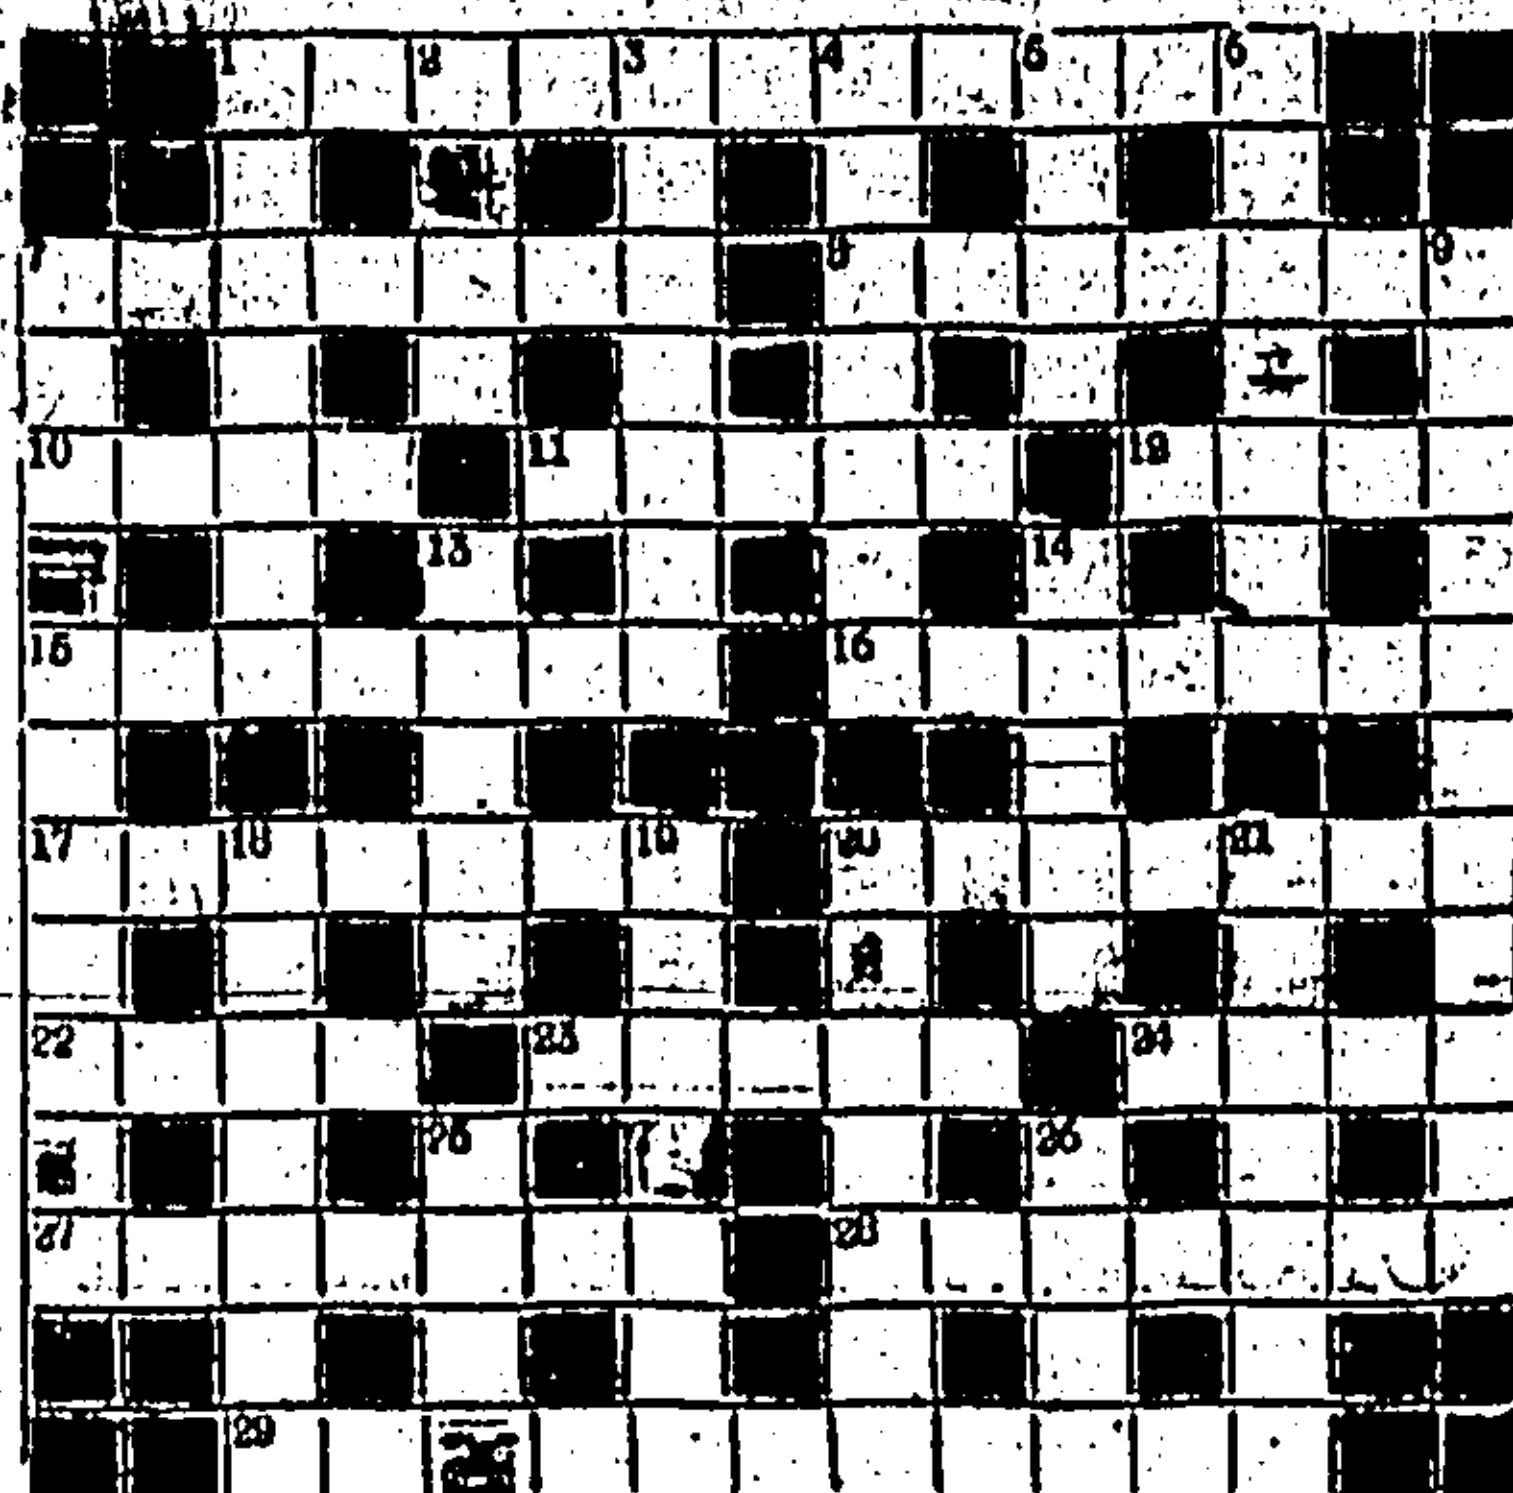

Cut up some corned beef and add to spaghetti; add pepper and salt, if necessary, cook for about six minutes and add the peas. Heat them all together and serve.

Spaghetti and Sheep's Hearts

This is a change from the usual ways of cooking sheep's hearts. It is a dish that could be prepared previously for reheating. For two people prepare four ounces of spaghetti as in previous recipe. After straining the spaghetti put it into a casserole with a sprinkling of sweet herbs, pepper and salt.

Wash the sheep's heart (one large or two small ones), cut off any fat, and then slice it up, and put with the spaghetti. Add a piece of butter and a small quantity of water. Cook with moderate heat for about an hour. Serve in casserole.

DARLING FOOL

by MABEL
McCELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

MONICA O'DARE, 20 and beautiful, is in love with DAN CARDIGAN, one of the town's rich young men. At a local dancing place where she has gone with Dan she meets her friend, SANDRA LAWRENCE, with a handsome and mysterious newcomer, CHARLES EUSTACE.

CHAPTER V

Something in the policeman's tone stiffened Monica's trembling backbone. She actually managed a laugh. "Bill arrested?" she echoed. "But that's absurd."

Bill's dark frown relaxed the merest trifle and Monica had the satisfaction of seeing her mother straighten, look about her bravely.

Absurd—of course it was absurd. Bill O'Dare under arrest! Why, he'd lived in Belvedere all his 22 years. He was honest as the day was long! Everybody knew that. The big man who dominated the scene found speech. He glowed at Monica.

"Absurd, is it?" he bellowed. "And who, may I ask, are you?" "I'm his sister," Monica said, bringing the full battery of her flashing amber eyes to rest upon him. "Would you mind telling me what this is all about?"

Several people began to talk at once. The big man silenced them. "Maybe you don't know," he began truculently, "that there's been a robbery down at the gas station—an' a big one. Maybe you don't know this young feller let them

The veins in Bill's forehead were swollen painfully. His scornful blue eyes flashed defiance. Was it fear that lurked behind those blue eyes? No, Monica would not entertain that thought for a single minute!

"What evidence?" she demanded staunchly.

"He was seen at Black Tree Inn with the lot of them last night," said the big man, enjoying the drama of this announcement. "He knew them. He was in it. He left there early and who he was with. Guess that sounds guilty, don't it?" Bill said thickly, fiercely, "That's a lie!"

"It's not a lie you were drinkin' with the lot of them at the Inn?"

"No," The monosyllable was wrenched from Bill. "No, But—" The big man cut him off abruptly. "None of our butts, young feller."

"I didn't know them. They just sat down at my table," Bill flung across at him. "I swear I didn't know."

His eyes found his mother's haggard face, implored her to believe him.

"Then when they drove up, brave as you please, at 11 o'clock didn't you fill up their gas tanks and pass the time o'day with them as happy as you please?" went on the big man. "When the says hands up, didn't you let them get away with it? Don't tell me you aren't part and parcel of the gang!"

Monica said in a low clear voice, "Don't worry, Bill. We believe you. We'll get a lawyer."

But Bill had been at Black Tree Inn. That alone counted against him. Her heart was pounding painfully. No matter what he had done the O'Dares would stand by him. But how dreadful it all was. The tag-end of a verse she had always loved came into her mind just then.

"The men of my own stock, Bitter had they may be, But at least they hear the things I hear."

They see the things I see— Bill looked oddly like their dead father at this moment. Daddy, the most honest man who'd ever lived. No, Bill O'Dare wasn't—couldn't be a thief. There must be a way out of this nightmare and Monica would have to find it.

Of all the townsfolk she could think of only one friend to appeal to. Judge Cory, Miss Anstice's father. He had been her grandfather's partner in the law firm of Kerrigan and Cory. She found the judge in his dusty office above the First National Bank. Trembling, she told him her story. The old man looked at her shrewdly out of rheumy blue eyes. "I'll go down to see him. Don't you worry. Did they say anything about furnishing bail?"

Monica threw out her hands. "We haven't any money, judge. I didn't dare ask about it even."

"No. No. I s'pose not." He contemplated the problem, stroking his white beard. "There isn't any one, I suppose."

Monica flushed. She knew what he must be thinking. Everyone in town supposed her to be engaged to Dan Cardigan. Wouldn't the Cardigans help her out—that was what Judge Cory meant.

"No one," she said with decision. What the proud Cardigans would think when they heard that Bill O'Dare was in jail she did not dare to consider. It was Bill she had to fight for now.

"I'll go right down and see the boy," The old man stood up, reaching for his battered Panama. "I'll do the best I can."

She had to be content with that. Somehow she managed a smile for her mother, waiting downstairs. "He's going right over. Don't worry. I'm sure everything's going to be all right."

She swayed against the girl, her face lighted with a deadly pallor. Monica felt the world swimming around her for one dreadful moment. Then she heard a friendly voice. Charles Eustace's.

CHILDRENArgentine Good Will Mission

Rome. The nearest approach to a children's party which Signor Mussolini has ever given in the historic Palazzo Venezia, in which he works, took place when fifteen children of the Argentine "good-will" mission to Italy visited him at his invitation. The children, who were of all ages, formed a line and gave Signor Mussolini a Fascist salute, which he smilingly acknowledged. The Duce, who loves children, forgot the cares of state for a moment and chatted animatedly to the children about their own country. —Reuter.

NEW YORK STOCK
EXCHANGEYESTERDAY'S MARKET STRONG

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was strong yesterday. Business done: 5,810,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal reports:—The break of the dollar to new lows since the resumption of specie payments in 1879 precipitated a short covering which developed into a general upward movement. Stocks made gains of from one to more than 7 points reaching the best level since 1931. A strong wheat market due to heat also helped to strengthen the market.

MONEY AND THE CONFERENCE

Undoubtedly the biggest task before the World Economic Conference is the devising of a common plan for increasing the circulation of money by a more liberal credit policy and thereby assisting towards the restoration of higher commodity prices. Too much emphasis cannot, however, be laid upon the fact that credit facilities will not achieve the purpose of raising price levels unless a demand for credit is created and the most obvious methods of producing this demand are such plans as those advocated by Mr. J. M. Keynes and President Roosevelt for great undertakings in public expenditure. The difficulties in this connexion are the dangers of causing a deterioration of governmental credit. In fact, no matter from what angle the problems of the Conference are approached, the student is thrust back upon the close relationship between the value of Money and public confidence, and the weaknesses of the monetary system are exposed. Money, the history of which has been interestingly described by Mr. Cope in the articles he has been writing for the Telegraph, has come under criticism from all quarters. As a medium of exchange, it appears to be on strike, or, at least, playing ca' canny. As a measure of value it is this today and that to-morrow. Its circulation is sluggish; it hides its seriously diminished head in bank vaults and balances, in irredeemable securities and refuses to come out, coax men never so coaxingly. Not infrequently, it vanishes in a night—dissipated forever whether as a medium of exchange or a measure of value. In brief, money has got out of hand. What is to be done about it? Ought we to throw—can we throw—money on the dump heap and adopt the technocratic "erg" or "joule" instead? Or ought we to put money in its place as servant

instead of master? And if so, how? In so far as an erg, or even a joule, is a measure of value, it remains—money. While we have anything to exchange, we have to have a medium of exchange—again, money. The barter establishments dotted about the United States may do without visible money, but the idea remains. It is even the very basis of the transaction. And it is paradoxically true that at the precise moment money has taken the bit between its teeth and bolted, there are more goods to be exchanged, and therefore a greater need for a reliable medium of exchange, than ever before in the known history of the world. The trouble in fact is not money, it is man's method of managing money. The world—indeed, nearly every individual in the world—is afraid of what money, or the lack of it, can do to him. The first thing, then, is to get rid of the fear. And having got the whip hand—it will be a new experience for him—man must then fasten a new set of reins and harness the runaway to its proper business of turning the wheels of prosperity. Obviously, it can be done. It may involve a drastic overhauling of existing monetary system. It may mean revising our ideas of the way money is put into circulation. There may have to be new methods of bookkeeping, even of banking, so as to enable the impatiently eager consumer to consume. All these are matters for the monetary expert. The job of the man in the street is to make crystal clear the goal he intends should be reached. He must say unmistakably that money's only legitimate function is to insure that there shall no longer be poverty in the midst of plenty, and that the idle wheels of silent machines shall whirl busily to produce the goods of which countless people stand in stark need: The goods are there; the demand is there; only the connecting link is missing.

Holidays for Wives.

The world has always leaned toward a dramatisation of its problems. Humanity likes to set up lay figures to represent some class or section to which its attention has been drawn. So we have the man with the hoe, the man in the street, the unknown soldier and, more lately, the forgotten man. It has remained for Sweden to call attention to a group that is wider than any yet covered by a lay figure; a group that stands behind all the four mentioned above, that has suffered the stress of all these classes without any of the publicity they have been accorded. There has been a word of tribute now and then, but for the most part a wide and deep silence. The General Swedish Electric Company on the occasion of its fiftieth anniversary announces that it has set aside a fund of $100,000 to provide vacations for the wives of small salaried employees of the company. In taking this step the Swedish concern decided that those who work behind the scenes, benefiting the company indirectly by looking after the men, were most in need of consideration. It was found that wives seldom had time for a complete rest. Someone should outline a figure to represent the woman behind the factory whistle, whose work begins long before the workers take their places at machine or bench, and continues long after spindle and lathe are silent; whose work year runs into 365 days, who is the first one to feel the pinch when work falls, and the last one to benefit by a pick-up. Should such a figure be drawn in its proper scale, it would perhaps make pygmies of the four already mentioned.

WORLD CRISIS

IV: TASK FOR THE WORLD ECONOMIC CONFERENCE

BY FREDERICK COPE, A.M.I.E.E.

Preceding observations have given a rough outline of our present financial system, and of what is meant by goods and services. It has been shown that in the beginning, goods and services were the first, and only, consideration. Production, and exchange of goods, proceeded without the use of money. Money was introduced to facilitate the production and the exchange of goods and services, a servant, as it were, to this main purpose.

But has Money maintained this position? Unfortunately, no. It has long since overstepped its job, and usurped the position of its master, and to-day largely tyrannises the main purpose. It has taken upon itself a function which was not probably thought of at the time of its introduction.

It was very early demonstrated that the convenience of money forms enabled an accumulation of the right to possess Physical Wealth, and from this emerged its all important attribute, its power to confer upon its owner a strong influence on the affairs of the world.

In proportion to the amount of our possession, we each have a little influence. Innumerable small company shareholders have their influence over affairs within their sphere. Large shareholders and directors more so. The controllers of Companies may have their influence over many phases of economic policy.

At the peak of this power, we have the ultra-financier, at whose decision, based not on human needs, but on money considerations, only, banks open or close, railways operate or are shut down, factories produce goods or they do not. The power we have conceded to money, makes the possessors of large quantities virtually the controllers of the destinies of peoples.

Americans invest money in Germany and, consequently, have their influence in degree on the economic life of the Germans. A German likewise invests in South America. An Englishman in France, and so on. Such is the power of money, which is given to it by popular opinion.

MONEY TALKS.

In the vernacular of a certain part of England there is a saying "Money talks; it speaks all languages, and knows all religions."

But money has not of itself substantial value, withdraw confidence, and its value vanishes. At one period a German Mark would buy goods. One year later, it was worthless, and no goods could be obtained in exchange.

Foreign investments are only of worth, as long as there is a reasonably contented people in that country. With the discontent arising from continual unemployment in every country in the world, money is in danger of losing its one and only support—Confidence.

Physical Wealth is of real utility value; it has substance. We can live on it, but not on money. When the present day basis of money has vanished, physical wealth will still be there.

THE TASK FOR THE ECONOMIC CONFERENCE.

Having skimmed through a few of the aspects affecting our economic life, we will now make an attempt to see exactly what is in front of the Economic Conference. In brief, it is the fact that our economic system is gradually coming to a stop, due to some basic fault. They have to find this fault; remove it, and let the economic system get in full swing again.

An economic system, we will say, is ideal when it permits of the maximum human development, and human happiness, one which will permit of the maximum satisfaction of our physical needs.

On this premise, there seems to be nothing wrong with the production aspect of our economic life. The capacity for producing physical wealth is enormous, and is multiplying.

We have never yet worked modern industry at its full capacity. As an illustration: in 1918, after 4 years of destruction, we heard the cry "the shelves of the world are empty". Industrial plant was set in motion, with half man-power, and before the end of 1920, there was a glut.

It seems that we had produced more goods than were required. Now this is a point which will have to be examined closely, because it provides us with the first clue. Was there a glut?

On our premise, there can be no such thing as real over-production, until every human physical need is satisfied.

We are yet a long way from that position. What really happened was that the money system was satisfied, and in relation to money, there was a glut! This is our self-imposed limitation. Our present money system can only work successfully, when the supply of goods is restricted.

THIRD PROPERTY OF MONEY.

1. Is this third property of Money, in the last analysis, which will probably prove to be at fault. If it is here, then we have a most difficult job to face.

This third property of Money is rooted in our everyday life. Our forefathers knew it and handed down the fruits to this generation. We have known it all our lives and it is expressed in our personal make-up.

Its roots run in all directions, and a serious operation will be necessary to get them out of our economic system, so much so that it is likely that the World at large will be tempted to wait until the very last moment before undertaking the operation.

Unpleasant though it might be to admit it, there is every indication that it is this third property of Money which is at fault.

Let us attempt a rough analogy to give an illustration of the working of the present system.

A farmer possesses a piece of land. On this land he employs 100 men. Both farmer and men depend on this land for their existence. The farmer commences to grow produce. To each man, for each 60 hours labour, he gives a paper note entitling him to one measure of produce. The produce is reaped, and 50,000 measures are available. The men purchase 40,000 measures with their paper notes. Then 10,000 measures are left over for the farmer, out of which he has to live and provide seed for the succeeding crop. Providing it is a business proposition for both farmer and men, the process would be constantly repeated, and all would be well.

We will now assume the balance to be upset. The farmer employs methods by which he can dispense with 50 men. The crop is reaped, and

The Very Idea!

THE UNFAIR SEX

By Mrs. Edward Kelly's Husband

IT has taken us exactly five years to find out that if married life is to succeed, there must be a lot of give and take. You give and she takes.

We never knew what happiness was until we were married. Then it was too late.

We are what you could call a married martyr. A martyr, in case you don't know it, is one who is obliged to listen to one.

Difference between a martyr and a bachelor is that a bachelor lives like a gentleman and dies like a dog. A married man lives like a dog and dies like a gentleman.

Our Henrietta is like that. Once upon a time we thought that she was the greatest little girl in the greatest little world in the world, and we fell so hard for her that we were bruised all over. But she's no longer little. In fact, to get more curves a man would have to marry the Repulse Bay road.

We will admit that marriage gives a man that companionship he wishes for, unless his wife is watchful. But a wife who isn't watchful is just a quixotic, foolish dream.

Take Pete's wife, for instance. She used to be a telephone operator, and the first thing she did was to give him the wrong number.

They were twin girls. Pete called them the two disasters.

Pete and us are alike in one respect. The only place you'll find peace in our homes is in the dictionary.

Women are what cause it. It doesn't matter whether you're married or single, there's always a woman at the bottom of things.

In Hongkong, so long as you have a motor car and plenty for cash, you'll find that a fool and his money are soon parted.

We once knew a man who, after his particular gold digger cleaned him out, stole a thousand bucks from his employer. And when she got that she put the police on to him. Imagine his embarrassment.

There's only one way to treat women. Treat 'em rough. The rougher the better. But you've got to use system.

The best system is a bottle of Johnny Walker. One whisky and we answer the wife back. Two whiskies and we're ready to fight. Three whiskies and alcohol her bluff.

Why waste your money on cheap sex literature like "Things Every Young Man should Know" or "Married Love." Take advantage of our stupendous offer. Every reader of this column can receive free of all charge (see conditions) a magnificent, superlative, colossal, breath-taking copy of our book "Let's Collabate." Take no notice of books offered to you on the same subject by other newspapers.

Simply cut out the coupon, sign your name and address, and provided that you don't forget to post the letter, the book will be posted to you, under plain cover, if we don't forget to post it.

The only condition is that a $10 note must be pinned to each coupon. Any number of coupons over a hundred may be sent. DON'T DELAY. WRITE TODAY. Hot chat!

SPEAKING OF RACES

It's a pity there's no horses in Hongkong. Otherwise we could work this one in as a local. Anyway, what's a horse between friends.

BONHAM STRAND PROPERTY

FINAL JUDGMENT SOUGHT

The Bonham Strand West property litigation was again before the Chief Justice, Mr. J. R. Wood, at the Supreme Court this morning, when, following the decision of His Lordship on Thursday last week, the defendant moved the court for final judgment.

The case was one in which Li Tse-shi, administratrix with the will annexed to the estate of her late husband, Li Woon-nam, of Teoi Shan, sought to recover 73 Bonham Strand, from Fong Tsoi-ching, of Shatin, it being alleged that the property assignment was a forgery perpetrated by plaintiff's adopted son, Li Kai-loi.

Mr. H. G. Sheldon and Mr. Leo D'Almeida, Castro, Jr., (instructed by Messrs. Lo and Lo) appeared for plaintiff, and Mr. Eldon Potter, K.C., and Mr. F. C. Jenkin, K.C., instructed by Messrs. Hastings and Co., for defendant.

Mr. Sheldon asked leave to recall Mr. Fong Tsoi-ching, interpreter to Messrs. Wilkinson and Grist and questioned him about the payment of a cheque for the completion of the sale of the property.

Mr. Potter submitted that the whole case for plaintiff had been reduced to one point, namely that Li Woon-nam, having died before the date of the assignment, that assignment could not have been executed by Li Woon-nam, and the forgery likewise could not have been executed by him. As a result any subsequent dealings with the property were null and void. The answer of the defence was, as had been held by His Lordship that the plaintiff had contemporaneous knowledge and consented to the property being assigned to Li Kai-loi.

His Lordship (to Mr. Potter): Is not your position this, as against Mr. Sheldon's argument, you have pleaded estoppel, and evidence which has been accepted by the Court has been called to establish a basis for estoppel. There you say the matter ends and the reason for that submission is that on the pleadings there is no reply to your statement of defence?—Mr. Potter: That is one point.

Mr. Sheldon submitted that on the evidence before the Court the defence had established no estoppel and applied for leave to file a reply which was granted. The case is proceeding.

ABSENT FROM HOUSE OF DETENTION

Inmate's Two Day Search For Work

A Canadian, Enrico Carosi, 41, mining engineer, appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning, charged with absenting himself from the House of Detention for the past two days without permission.

Defendant said he was out looking for a job aboard ships. He returned at 4 p.m. yesterday.

Chief Warder Buchanan said defendants were always allowed out if they either telephoned or reported at the Gaol. The Prison authorities were not pressing the case but the Superintendent wished regulations to be enforced.

The Magistrate cautioned Carosi and warned him he must obey the regulations. He would put him in prison the next time.

FORGED NUMBER PLATE

RICKSHAW PULLER FINED

The case in which a Hoko was yesterday charged with driving an unlicensed rickshaw on which a forged plate had been affixed, was dealt with by Mr. Wynne-Jones this morning, a fine of $30 or one month being inflicted.

Sub-Inspector Saunders, of the Traffic Department said the defendant refused to assist the Police in any way.

His Worship—I gave you a chance to try and prove you are not in the swindle and you refused to take it.

The police officer said the rickshaw will be kept for six months and then will probably be disposed of.

MORE STUPID THAN DISHONEST

CONDUCTOR OF PEAK TRAM FINED

"You are more stupid than dishonest," remarked Mr. Wynne-Jones in Court this morning when he convicted and imposed a fine of $15 on Pang Chee-on, a conductor of the Peak Tramways Limited, for the embezzlement of 40 cents.

Mr. L. G. Scott, Superintendent of the Peak Tramways, was the complainant while Chief Inspector A. A. Andrews also gave evidence.

Defendant's modus operandi, as described by Mr. H. J. Armstrong who appeared for the prosecution, was that when a Shantung Sergeant boarded the 9.50 a.m. down tram on Friday, defendant issued a ten cent ticket for a thirty cents Police voucher. On the 2.30 p.m. up tram, on which by chance the defendant happened to be the conductor, the Sergeant was also handed a ten cent ticket. It was defendant's duty to change the vouchers to ten cents as the Sergeant had sat in the ten cents accommodation. There was no suggestion of fraud on the part of the Sergeant, said Mr. Armstrong, as, according to his story he did not know they were 30 cent vouchers. In October last year, the Superintendent gave Mr. Andrews instructions to issue a specific order, which was signed by the defendant, as to what should be done when a case of this nature arose.

After evidence had been called, defendant, in a lengthy statement, told the Magistrate he knew he had 40 cents surplus when he went off duty. As he did not know whose the money was, he did not make a report. If he had made a report he would have been reprimanded. Shantung constables usually used ten cents vouchers.

His Worship said he was quite prepared to believe the defendant's story that he took the vouchers by accident. Mr. Armstrong agreed. But, said his Worship, defendant was certain that no European or Indian policeman travelled on the tram that day, and therefore he must have known the answer to the surplus of forty cents. Defendant had been merely trying to cover his own stupidity.

Mr. Armstrong, replying to his Worship, said the Superintendent had a suspicion that there might be a system with these vouchers. Mr. Scott would not go any further than that.

Mr. Scott added that defendant's monthly wages at present was $44, and he joined the Company in 1928.

SHAUKIWAN ROBBERY

TENANT STRUCK WITH PIECE OF IRON

Said to be a baniashee from Rangoon, Tsang Yuk was sentenced to seven months' hard labour by Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, on charges of breaking into an unnumbered hut in Shaukiwai, and stealing, and also of having caused bodily injury to Tsang Kwong.

The complainant said that when he returned to his hut he found defendant trying to open the basket with an iron instrument. Defendant attacked him with the iron, inflicting a cut over his eye.

The defendant contended that he was set upon by the complainant and some other men, and was himself injured. He only acted in self-defence.

CORRESPONDENCE

CANTON'S CHALLENGE TO NANKING.

(To the Editor of the Hongkong Telegraph.)

Sir,—According to a recent report the South Western Political Council at Canton has sent a further protest to the League of Nations, as well as to the Soviet Government and the Signatories of the Nine Power Pact, denouncing the armistice with Japan agreed to by General Chiang Kai-shek etc. . . .

While the Sino-Japanese situation has eased up considerably during the last few days, the internal situation has taken a sudden turn for the worse.

The present truce has concluded because the Chinese troops had been defeated, otherwise the Government would never have thought of coming to terms with the enemy. In face of the apparent inferiority in the both armament and training of the Chinese forces, what can the Opposition suggest should be done if they oppose the truce. How can the war be carried on and who is going to do the fighting? The war cannot be carried out by propaganda or by circular telegrams, it has to depend on with real weapons like guns, airplanes and the blood of soldiers. Can China match the Japanese in these weapons?

China is already suffering from a serious crisis which if it is not handed properly may result in the destruction of China as an independent nation.

The fact that it has been compelled to come to terms with Japan after having lost four of China's richest provinces fully demonstrates the weakness of the present administration. If such a state of affairs continues, it is more than doubtful whether the present Government can remain long in the saddle.

If the Opposition comes from the people, it is perfectly justified that the Government should be overthrown. But the present opposition does not originate from the people, but from a group of politicians and militarists who are themselves no better statesmen than the men now in power. The real masters of the country, the people, played no part in the movement. Then what good can such movement do to the nation?

Despite their sweet-coated words and circular telegrams, these opposition leaders have no thought for the benefit of the country but are merely promoting their own SELFISH interests. Therefore if they succeed it will be for their own aggrandisement and not in anyway for the benefit of the nation.

The country cannot afford to have another serious internal war. The Chinese people are tired of civil wars and don't want to have another, which will further lower the international status of China. China to-day is in such a critical state that she cannot afford another civil war. If these unscrupulous politicians and militarists desire to overthrow the present regime for their own selfish aims, they will receive the condemnation of the whole nation.

Yours faithfully,
UNITY.

COLLAPSED FROM STARVATION

GYPSY VIOLINIST'S WIDOW FOUND

New York, June 8. Mme. Rigo, former wife of a gypsy violinist called Prince Rigo, who once toured Europe playing before royalties and receiving gifts from them, collapsed in the streets to-day from starvation.

On being brought home, it was found that there was not a scrap of food in her room, and that her sole possession was a trunk full of souvenirs. Among them was a violin dated 1632, which was the gift of Nicholas Amati to her husband at the height of his career.

Rigo died penniless. His widow then married the Lieutenant-Governor of Florida, Mr. Edward Gordon, who died two years ago. Mme. Rigo clung to her violin through years of poverty. Her friends are now trying to sell it to save her.—Reuter.

Sent Mata Hari To Execution

DEATH OF MAJOR G. LADOUX

Cannes. The execution of Mata Hari is recalled by the death of Major G. Ladoux, head of the dread "Deuxieme Bureau" who in conjunction with his British opposite number, Admiral Sir Reginald Hall, unmasked her as one of the most dangerous spies in the whole German network.

Ladoux used to recall that he first met Mata Hari in August, 1916, when the beautiful dutch dancer walked boldly into his office and offered to mesmerize by her beauty and charm the Crown Prince of Germany if the French Government would pay her a million francs. Ladoux asked what guarantees she could offer of even meeting the Crown Prince.

"I have had him at my feet once," she replied, "And I can do it again!"

SPY UNMASKED. Unfortunately for her schemes Ladoux had received from Sir Reginald Hall, a dossier throwing the gravest suspicions on her. The Major admitted later that he was unable to decide how sincere Mata Hari was in her desire to work for the Allies, but agreed to send her on a mission to Germany. As a precaution he instructed her to go via Spain and England so that her movements could be watched en route.

Ladoux's parting words were a warning which proved to be a terrible prophecy.

"If you betray us, Mata Hari, the next time that we meet you will be in the dock at a court martial."

Within a week an intercepted wireless message from the German Embassy at Madrid confirmed Ladoux's suspicions. Two months later she was captured and shot. Marthe Richard, now Mrs. Crompton, the widow of an Englishman, the most successful French woman spy during the war, whose information foiled a German plot for an anti-French rising in Morocco, was one of Ladoux's most precious lieutenants.—Reuter.

been made towards the formation of a local hockey board for governing the stick game in the Colony—a meeting for all hockey enthusiasts having been convened by Mr. J. E. Potter, secretary of the Hongkong Hockey Club to be held at the Volunteer Headquarters on June 22.

Every club has been invited to send its representatives and a general invitation is extended to all others interested. The primary point to be considered is whether such a central body would materially benefit the game here and of this I entertain little doubt. On the face of it I think it will be readily conceded that the scheme is a laudable one for it is always in the best interests of any sport in connection with which competitions are likely to be held to bring it under the guidance of a central body.

AFFILIATION PROBLEM.

If the meeting is in favour of the formation of such a board the first thing which will be done I understand is to affiliate to the English Hockey Association which carries with it the necessity of conforming to the E.H.A. rules. This will mean that no Club, member, or player may take part in any challenge Cup or prize competition.
It is competition for a "pot" that has done much to raise the standard of hockey in the Colony to its present level. This is evidenced in the popularity of the Mamak competition and I would therefore suggest that the promoters hesitate and consider the question of affiliation very carefully before making their decision. If the meeting should resolve not to become affiliated the Club, Army and Navy will be placed in a somewhat invidious position for they are already affiliated. It is little points like these which require the most careful consideration before definite decisions are reached.

The whole thing is a delicate proposition and one calling for a broad outlook and wise counsel.

LEAGUE TENNISPROFESSIONAL
WIGAN TEAM

The record crowd which gathered at Wembley last month to see the Rugby League Cup Final has fired certain people with the ambition to introduce the game to London as a permanent attraction.

A syndicate has offered to take over the Wigan Highfield club, including its players, as the nucleus of a Rugby League club for London.

Wigan Highfield finished the season in the last place but one of the Rugby League table, winning only eight matches out of 38.
Their players alone would be insufficient to give a new club any chance of making a success in London.

The syndicate which now offers to buy them up is composed of men who fully realise that other players will have to be secured.

WHITE CITY STADIUM.

It has substantial financial resources and plans to establish the new club at the White City Stadium, which has accommodation for 100,000 spectators. Its ambition is to gather together a team of super players.

Whether the Rugby League will sanction the scheme and admit a London club into membership remains to be seen.

Wigan Highfield, who are in a bad way financially, are understood to have agreed, but the Council of the League is composed of shrewd Northerners who are only too well aware of the disastrous results which attended former attempts to widen their sphere of influence in other parts of the country.

New clubs have at various times been born and died in Liverpool,
Carlisle, Merthyr, Aberdare, Ebbw
Vale and other South Wales towns, and the Council is sure to demand guarantees of the most stringent kind before embarking on any fresh adventure.

President, Mr. F. A. Kemp; vice-presidents, Messrs. D. W. Waterton and G. W. R. Griggs; hon. secretary, Mr. F. J. P. Elms; hon. treasurer,
Mr. D. W. Waterton; assist. secretary, Mr. M. Sheriff; assist. treasurer, Mr. J. S. Groul; bar steward, Mr. G. W. R. Griggs.

Representatives elected were Messrs. O. England White (grounds), J. S. Loran (football), Surjit Singh (hockey), Ng Wai-lam (tennis), W. J. Chanson (basketball), M. H. Hassan ("Cosmos"), Jahan Dad (Indians), Ma Sheung-ying (Chinese).

It is not yet decided whether the Radio will be competing in the Mamak hockey competition next season. They are, I understand, awaiting the decisions of the meeting referred to above to consider the possibilities of forming a local association.

KONG, CHENG &
KHOOA. L. SULLIVAN PLAYS
FOR FRENCH CLUBBOISEREE TAKES

(By "Veritas")

The Shanghai league tennis season is now well under weigh, and the city's most prominent players figure among the participants.

Names, well known for their Interport associations, such as John Wade, Guy Cheng, Khoo
Hooi-hye, Paul Kong, Mansel-Smith and A. L. Sullivan, appear in the various teams.

Khoo, Cheng and Kong constitute the leading lights of the senior Chinese Tennis Club team which is going great guns, and offering a very impressive challenge to the Japanese Tennis Club, winners of the championship for the past three years.

Against the Shanghai Cricket Club, the C.T.C., romped home to the tune of 13 sets to 2.

A. L. Sullivan, ex Shanghai and Hongkong Interporter, has thrown in his lot with the Cercle Sportif Francais and against the Shanghai Recreation Club teamed up with K. Krenov, who, if memory serves me correctly, married Miss "Billie" Firth, Interporter, last year.

Against John Wade and his son
"H.L.", Sullivan and Krenov were last week beaten 2-6, 6-1, 8-10.
Pat Madar, Interporter cricketer, is playing for the Shanghai Recreation Club in company with C.
J. Smith, but they did poorly against the French pair J. Berents and A. G. Meise losing all three sets 6-4, 6-2, 7-5.

BOISEREE TURNS TO TENNIS.

Incidentally Boiseree, the Shanghai Interport footballer, who accompanied the team to Hongkong last January, has turned to league tennis this summer. He is turning out for the Recreation Club in the second division and with Dr. Relgo as his partner helped to trounce the Jewish Recreation Club last week by 15 sets to nil. Boiseree and Relgo won three sets 6-0, 6-3, 6-2.

The standings in the two divisions on Thursday last were:

day was won by J. B. Bouchard.

Spey Royal Cup Games
For To-morrow.

RAIN PREVENTS PLAY.

Lawn bowls yesterday were impossible owing to the inclement weather and the heavy state of the greens. The postponed matches included the Spey Royal Cup competition tie between the Talkoo R. C. and the Hongkong Electric R. C. which was to have been played on the Craigengower C. C. green.
No date has yet been fixed for the match, but it is probable that it will be played towards the end of the week or on Sunday, which is the last day for the completion of the first round

TO-DAY'S LEAGUE
ENGAGEDU.S.R.C. MAY BE EXTENDED

Although the courts will be extremely heavy, it is hoped if no more rain falls that the majority of the games fixed for the "B" Division of the tennis league this afternoon will be played.

Chief interest is the visit of the United Services Recreation Club, potential champions, to the Hongkong Cricket Club. Last week the Cricket Club gave an excellent showing at the K.C.C., and beat one of the strongest teams it is possible for the Kowloon club to put into the courts.

Playing on their own ground
this afternoon, the Cricket Club should be in the position to upset the enviable record enjoyed by the U.S.R.C. to date.

K.C.C. CHANGES.

Further changes have been made in the constitution of the K.C.C. side. "Sammy" Green has been selected and the veteran champion is teaming up with his son, D. S. Green.

Stapleton and Burnett are out, having been chosen for the "A" team and as Hamby has been robbed of D. S. Green as his partner, A. E. Collins will come into the side. Gray and Rodgers, who played together for the first time last week, retain their places.

The C.R.C., Recrelo and K.C.C. appear to have fairly easy games, but the I.R.C. received a visit from South China and as mentioned before the United Services go to the Club, and in both cases the outcome is not easy to forecast.

THE GAMES.

The programme for this afternoon is:

"B" DIVISION.

C.R.C. v. University
I.R.C. v. South China
Civil Service v. Recrelo
K.C.C. v. Graduates
H.K.C.C. v. U.S.R.C.

matches.
To-morrow the tie between the Craigengower C. C. and the Royal Hongkong Yacht Club will be played off on the Police green. The following will be the two opposing sides:

Craigengower Yacht Club
G. L. Buchanan J. L. Spence
E. W. Bradbury J. A. R. Selby
H. Beer J. W. C. Bonnar
U. M. Omar A. Macfarlane

Bowling matches arranged to be played at the Police Green and the Craigengower C.C., Happy Valley, yesterday afternoon, had to be postponed on account of the unfavourable weather.

—HELEN

"A splendid idea. Not only would I be willing to play a match with Mrs. Helen Wills Moody anywhere and at any time, but it would give me immense pleasure to meet my great opponent of seven years ago on the court again."

Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen was quite excited when she gave a reply to the suggestion that she should meet Mrs. Moody, the Wimbledon lawn tennis champion, when she arrives in London to defend her title this month.

Mrs. Moody has already expressed her willingness to meet Mlle.
Lenglen in a month "provided the authorities approved."

day was won by J. B. Bouchard.

application for a match in London had been made.

Permission would have to be sought from the amateur bodies of France and America, and the country in which the match would take place, before such a contest between an amateur and professional was possible.

The first and last time Mrs.
Moody and Suzanne Lenglen met on the court was at Cannes in 1926 when the Frenchwoman, then in her prime, won 6-3, 8-6.

figure of her mother over the running board. As in a dream, she followed him.

"That's right. You hold her head against your shoulder. She's just a bit faint. We'll stop by my uncle's office and get her something."

The car flew along. Monnie was conscious of curious faces along the way. How he had found her—how he had known where she was to be found or what the trouble was, she didn't even bother to consider. She was grateful from the bottom of her heart, that in a very passion of gratitude, that nothing she might ever do would repay this man for his kindness.

At last they were at home. Mrs. O'Dare declaring herself able to walk now, had been assisted into the house, had willingly accepted the medicine Dr. Waterman had prescribed for her and agreed to lie down for a short time.

Monnie went back into the living room where she found Charles Eustace, very big and masculine, among the ferns and looped curtains of her mother's domain.

"I don't know how to thank you. I suppose you've heard what fearful difficulties we're in."

If she said any more, she was certain to cry. And she must not do that. She must keep her head at any cost.

"I did. I'm frightfully sorry. Can I help?"

"You have already. Judge Cory is going down there. She ran her fingers nervously through her bronze curls. "You must believe my brother's innocent, Mr. Eustace. He couldn't have done this thing. It's not in him—I mean he simply couldn't!"

Her eyes challenged him. "I'm sure of it. Look here, I'll run down to see him—I haven't another thing to do. I'll stop by and let you know what I've found out. May I?"

How kind he was! And she had only known him a few days. There was Dan who was supposed to be in love with her and Dan hadn't telephoned—hadn't rushed to her side.

She gave him her hand. "I will thank you all my days." He smiled at her. "It's nothing."

Alone she paced the floor. What would this mean to all of them? They had been poor, they had been shabby, but no one ever had been able to point a finger of scorn at them. What would Kay say, who was so lovely and so proud? She glanced fearfully at the clock. Kay was due home from school at any moment. Someone might call to her on the street, might terrify her.

"Ya-ah, your brother's in jail!" And Mark, mischievous, friendly and loyal. Poor Mark! Of herself Monnie would not think. Of what it meant to her and her hopes. She never knew, later, how she got through that dreadful afternoon. She had telephoned the store to say she wouldn't be able to come back that day. She made her mother drink some strong, hot tea. She kept up her pose of unflinching cheerfulness. When Kay and Mark came in she drew them aside and told them the story as kindly as she could. Kay's reaction was typical.

Sternly the older sister reminded her. "Don't you care at all what happens to Bill?"

"Oh, Bill!" There was a world of contempt in the girl's voice. "I know something like this'd happen, with that crowd he's been running with."

Kay shrugged. "Oh, if you didn't keep yourself buried like an ostrich, you'd know. That cheap crowd from the Center—that candy-shop girl—married, too—"

Monnie's heart gave a great leap. (Continued on Next Column.)

BUY YOUR
BEAUTY'S SAKE?

DIFFERENT people have different reasons for selecting a pen for personal use. If you want a pen that looks like an aristocrat in your pocket and on your desk, one that comes in many exquisite colors—then you want a Parker! But, don't judge a pen by its appearance alone. Remember that you'll have to write a good many million words the rest of your life. More Parkers are sold than any other make because they write easily, smoothly, without pressure. That's important! You can write page after page without effort, uninterruptedly, as the ink flows from the gold point. Each Parker point, by the way, is tested 11 times! Have your dealer show you, today, the Parker's non-breakable and leak-proof barrel. Look at the concealed button-filler, and the clip that makes it possible to keep the pen deep and secure in your pocket. . . . But buy a genuine Parker. At good stores everywhere.

Parker QUINK—Poor ink can clog the finest pen. Try Quink, the quick-drying ink that is absolutely free from sediment. Flows smoothly and freely. Permanent or washable.

This was worse and worse. "You mean Bill's been running around with a married woman?" "Of course, he has. Everybody knows it." "Don't let Mother hear you," warned Monnie with a glance at the stairs. "You stay here. I've got an important errand to do—" She snatched her hat from the hall stand and ran out. She must find Charles Eustace. This woman, whoever she was, must be the clue to Bill's innocence. Bill must be shielding her. That was why he wouldn't tell more about the night at Black Tree Inn. But maybe the woman would talk—and save Bill from disgrace! (To Be Continued.)

LORD RIDDELL'S WAR DIARY

Revelation of Cabinet Differences

London, June 9.
The war diary of Lord Riddell, published yesterday, revealed intimate details of difference between British Cabinet Ministers during the War and of the poor opinions of the Earl of Oxford & Asquith and Earl Kitchener held by their colleagues.

Mr. Lloyd George is made the dominating figure in the book, which reveals his growing friction with Lord Oxford until the latter's retirement and his lack of faith in Lord Kitchener.

On the other hand, Lord Kitchener was equally critical of his colleagues. Several times in April, 1916, Lord Riddell wrote that Lord Kitchener told him that the Cabinet did not understand the difficulties of making rifle shells, etc., and that he was being misunderstood, declaring: "When the war is over, I will shake the dust of this country off my feet and go east. The people here do not understand me, and I do not understand them."

BIG POSTER.

In October, 1914, Lord Riddell recorded that Mr. Lloyd George quoted Elizabeth Asquith, now Princess Bibesco, as describing Earl Kitchener as a big poster, a large advertisement, on which Mr. Lloyd George commented: "I think she is right. He is a big man, but he does not understand English life, and whatever he may have done in the past he pays no attention to details and does not properly control his staff. He is just a big figurehead."

In April, 1916, Mr. Lloyd George complained to Lord Riddell that Lord Oxford was "treating the war as if it were home rule of Welsh dis-establishment. He does not recognize that the nation is fighting for its life. When a subject is forced on his attention, his judgment is admirable, but he never searches out the weak places.—Reuter.

50,000 measures are again available. The men have now only half the purchasing power, and can buy only 20,000 measures, leaving the farmer with 30,000 measures, with which to feed himself and provide seed for the next crop. If he is unable to consume the surplus, more is left for seed purposes.

At the end of the next period, having planted extra seed, he has a much greater amount of produce, and the amount is out of all proportion to the purchasing power of the men. His surplus is now more than he can manage, under his present system. There are only two courses open to him—one is to destroy the surplus and the other is to increase the purchasing power by issuing more paper money. The latter course, because he does no benefit to himself, he will not take, therefore he destroys the surplus.

This is exactly what we are doing to-day, decreasing purchasing power and, at the same time, attempting to invest further money to gain interest and profit. Extra profit can only be made by increasing production or reducing costs. If we increase production, we have to destroy it. If we reduce costs, this in turn, reduces purchasing power. We have no way out of the difficulty. Under the existing conditions of profit and cheap production, it is apparent that the present financial system has defect in itself, and cannot deal with present-day conditions.

We are actually experimenting in destroying existing wealth (in the hope of creating it again for the benefit of the money system). Financials are withdrawing credits and cheque money because of the risk of financial loss. Production and trade, on account of this reduction of money in circulation (purchasing power) react by contracting in sympathy. Trade becomes less, interest and profits are less, consequently risks become greater; the financier then withdraws further credits and so on. The one is chasing the other, on a downward tendency, and ultimately, if this progression is continued, a complete stop will be reached. The only thing to prevent it is an increase in price levels.

Assume that a point is reached, before human patience has broken under the strain by inflation of currency, or by expanding credit, we get production and money into such a relationship as would be called economically sound.

Price levels would then permit of reasonable profits. Can we say, at this point, that the problem is solved? It is extremely unlikely. There is every reason to believe that the boldest sign of increasing demand for goods, the enormous latent strength of productive capacity will respond and swamp the market.

The balance would be upset and we should have the same problem with us again. Under present arrangements it is practically impossible to control world production.

DEFINITE PLAN.

All this difficulty comes about through what we have termed the third property of Money. It will be seen by the analogy, that with profit production it is necessary to have a definite plan. The farmer must justify his authority, and regulate production to satisfy and not exceed demand. In the interest of the community, and of himself in the long run, he must not be permitted to play a game of "Dog in the Manger", through the power of his ownership. Capital Investment—our third property of money. A definite amount must be reserved for seed purposes, and the rest must be consumed or utilized, in order to satisfy all conditions.

Under our present system, millions have a voice in the matter of direction of what should be saved, and what should be consumed. The result is the present confusion and chaos. Money is saved for investment which should be spent. Naturally, instead of interest and profit, it receives the reverse—a loss.

Continuing our analogy, under today's conditions, the farmer (the manipulator of capital) does just as he wishes, irrespective of the interests of the community, until as now he has managed to get into an economic tangle. It would seem that we shall always be in this tangle until we enforce a means for the sensible manipulation of capital.

Under a well directed plan, it would be possible to ascertain exactly what wealth should be conserved, and what should be utilized and consumed. It is logically certain, that any plan which destroys wealth, and suppresses the production of wealth, can never create a real prosperity.

(To-morrow's article, probably the most interesting of the series, is for a series of World Conferences, all seeking to patch up the present system, and failing, and deals with the speech of "a delegate of one of the great Powers at the Tenth Economic Conference," advocating a complete breakaway from current ideas.)

KING OPENS WORLD CONFERENCE

SOLEMN PLEA FOR CLOSE HARMONY IN LABOURS

NOTE OF OPTIMISM.

His Majesty the King, in simple and solemn language, yesterday delivered the inaugural address at the opening of the World Economic Conference in London.

Immediately following him, Premier Ramsay MacDonald spoke, reviewing the condition of world affairs and impressing upon the delegates of sixty-seven nations the necessity for the closest co-operation.

The striking resemblance between the present Conference and the Peace Parley of 1919, was enhanced by the presence of statesmen who attended on that other memorable occasion. The same staff of interpreters who worked at Geneva when the Sino-Japanese quarrel was aired, were present yesterday.

MACDONALD'S WELCOME.

London, June 12. Intensive efforts on the part of everyone concerned... Bureau officials, furnishers, decorators and a host of other busy workers... succeeded in rendering the Geological Museum thoroughly well equipped for the opening of the great Economic Conference, whereas the nations of the world will discuss ways and means of correcting the causes of trade depression, unemployment and the discontent consequent upon them.

On a dais at the top end of the Assembly Hall is a great walnut and gold throne for His Majesty King George. From here Britain's sovereign later delivered the Conference's inaugural address, in the presence of two representatives from each of the sixty-seven delegations present.

As a preliminary to the greater Conference, a meeting of representatives of the British Government and the Dominions, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and India, was called in the morning. The assembly was attended by Premier Ramsay MacDonald and a majority of the Cabinet members and Empire representatives.

The meeting lasted throughout the morning and it is presumed that the British Empire delegates discussed their attitude towards the Conference problems from a viewpoint of common interest.—Reuter.

The King Arrives.
At 3 o'clock, King George arrived at the assembly hall. The King took his seat upon the throne, raised on a dais in the front of the hall. On his right hand stood Premier MacDonald, and next to him Sir Eric Drummond, retiring Secretary-General of the League of Nations. On his Majesty's left was M. Avenol, new Secretary of the League, and acting Secretary-General of the Conference.

THE KING'S ADDRESS.
Praise for League Work For Conference.
The King's speech follows: "At this time of widespread economic distress, it is with a feeling of deep responsibility that I welcome you to this country."

"I believe this is the first time in history that any sovereign has presided at the opening of a conference of all the nations of the world and I wish to express my satisfaction that such a gathering has been made possible and my confidence that this common endeavour will leave beneficial results."

"I welcome the representatives of the states which are members of the League of Nations. I have always followed the work of the League with the keenest appreciation and interest. The League convened the Conference, prepared the way therefore, through the valuable services of the expert Committee. Without the League, without the ideals of the League, I doubt whether this great meeting could ever have taken place."

"I welcome no less cordially the representatives of the states which are not members of the League. I recognise the spirit of helpful co-operation which has brought them to join in these discussions. And I further wish to add my special welcome to the representatives of the Dominions and India."

Thereafter speaking in French, His Majesty said: "It is with the most profound emotion that I see around me this august assembly, which seems so vast but represents an infinitely more vast conception of hope and the wishes of the entire world."

"The world is not in a quiet state, and for you the task is heavy. It will not be achieved except through goodwill and sincere co-operation."

"I extend my hand to you, and with all my heart wish your efforts may be brought to a happy result, which the peoples of the world await impatiently."

Speaking again in English, he added: "I fully recognise the magnitude of the task of the Conference, but there is evidence of a real desire to reach an agreement which gives me hope."

"All nations are suffering from a common ill. This is shown only too clearly by the rise in figures of unemployment. The meaning of these figures in terms of human suffering has been my constant concern in recent years. It has been the concern of everyone here to-day upon whom the responsibility of government rested."

"In the face of the crisis which we all realize and acknowledge, appeal to you to co-operate for the sake of the ultimate good of the whole world. It cannot be beyond the power of man so to use the vast resources of the world so as to assure the material progress of civilization. No diminution of these resources has taken place."

"On the contrary, discovery, invention and organization have multiplied these possibilities to such an extent that the abundance of production itself has created the new problems. Together with this amazing material progress, there can come a new recognition of the interdependence of nations and the value of collaboration between them. Now is the opportunity to harness the new consciousness of common interests to the service of mankind."

"In the firm belief that mutual consultation is the first step towards right action, I inaugurate this Conference, and shall follow its deliberations with the closest interest and attention."

"I pray the results of your labours may set the world once more on a path of prosperity and ordered progress."

PREMIER'S WELCOME.
Expresses High Hopes For Parley's Success.

AUTHORITY OF BODY.
Following the King's speech, when he had escorted His Majesty out of the chamber, Premier Ramsay MacDonald addressed the gathering.

In welcoming the delegates, he said he hoped the name of the London Economic Conference would be carved among those of the great international gatherings which had brought blessings upon mankind."

He said, amid cheers, that he proposed to offer King George the expression of the Conference's gratitude, for the honour done it and the interest His Majesty had taken in its work."

He pointed out that the sixty-seven Governments represented included ten non-members of the League of Nations and said that there was greater authority gathered in the hall than perhaps had ever been brought under one roof in the history of the world."

Tremendous Problem.
Mr. MacDonald emphasized the tremendous magnitude of the problems the Conference faced, pointing out that the world for some years had been suffering from economic decline, which had closed factories, limited employment, reduced the standard of living, had brought some states to the verge of bankruptcy and inflicted upon others recurring unbalanced budgets."

Since 1929, he said, prices had fallen well below the line at which production is remunerative. This had added oppressively to the burden of the world's indebtedness. The general crisis had been accentuated by restrictions, tariffs, quotas and exchange control which had reduced international trade to less than three-quarters its former volume and half its former price. World unemployment, as a result, had reached the impressive figure of 90,000,000.

Mr. MacDonald referred to the War debts as a matter of "front rank importance, with which I cannot deal here because obviously

NEW U.S. ENVOY VERY ILL

CONCERN OVER MR. BINGHAM'S HEALTH

London, June 9. The health of Mr. Robert Worth Bingham, the new United States Ambassador to Britain, is causing much concern to his friends.

The Ambassador has only been seen once in public since his arrival and has taken part in no social functions. He was to have been the guest of the English Speaking Union at dinner to-night but now it is announced that the dinner has been cancelled.

The Ambassador, it is learned, has cancelled all engagements, except those absolutely necessary in connexion with the World Economic Conference, and has been ordered to bed by his doctors.—Reuter.

the Conference is not constituted so as to consider it separately.

"But it must be dealt with before every obstacle to the general recovery has been removed," he added, "and must be taken up without delay. The work of the Lausanne Conference must be completed and the vexed question settled once and for all, in the light of the present world conditions."

The Prime Minister recalled that the present Conference was summoned as a sequel to the meeting at Lausanne. He said that the work in the intervening months had not made it easier to face the present tasks. Indeed, the problems in some respects had been intensified. But it was useless to think of postponing the Economic Conference until circumstances were more promising.

Need of Co-operation.

Proceeding to stress the necessity of international co-operation, Mr. MacDonald said the experiences of the past few years had proved that the purely national economic policy, by impoverishing other nations, impoverished those who pursued it.

"International co-operation is the best way to international recovery. We are, therefore, here to pursue the better course of international agreement."

The Prime Minister expressed his thanks to the most able and very representative body of experts who had drawn up the agenda of the Conference, which will be the basis of the deliberations. But when the Conference had done its part, he added, the various Governments must face their own problems of internal and industrial policy in co-operation, where it was both possible and necessary, with the International Labour office.

No "Nibbling."

Urging the need of taking a wide view, Mr. MacDonald declared the policy of nibbling would not solve the crisis. He said: "If we deliberate as though the nations were isolated units we shall fail and the world will drain the bitter cup of disappointment. But if we realize the permanent good of each depends on the permanent good of all, and determine to co-operate, coming to agreements which will render a renewal of prosperity possible, we shall succeed and the expectations of the world will be justified."

"We must not fail. We can give to the world as a note of our first meeting, that we are determined to succeed, nor can we delay the rapidly of the agreement essential to success. Let the world know we can show decision and give leadership. Our programme is intricate and raises a subject whereon we were held hitherto irreconcilable views. Yet the needs of the world are so pressing and experiences of the last few years so illuminatingly tragic, that we must approach our work with fluid and flexible minds."

Urgent Necessities.

He believed he was expressing the views of the great body of delegates when he said they would not discuss near economic theories, but make practical proposals to meet the urgent necessities.

"We shall therefore invite each delegation to submit its proposal in definite terms, so we may enter without loss of time, upon an examination of what can be translated into action, and begin deliberations of what we can do in co-operation either for emergency or more permanent purposes."

The Premier concluded by urging the Conference to put a new heart and confidence into the world and mark the end of years of uncertainties and policies which brought distress to all.

"Let us see before we disperse that we have revived hope and energy and opportunity. For these the world waits and it is in our power to provide them."

The Conference adjourned until 10.30 a.m. to-morrow after the Conference, at Mr. MacDonald's request, had appointed the delegates of Portugal, Egypt and Venezuela as a Committee of Verification for the credentials of delegates.—Reuter.

DOLLAR MARKET NERVOUS

RATE UNCHANGED THIS MORNING

After two jumps in the course of yesterday, the dollar opened this morning at 1s. 6d. representing an advance of 1/4th on yesterday's opening rate, but no change from the closing rate.

The local market is, however, very nervous and little business is being done.

In London, silver prices advanced slightly, on Indian and speculative buying, with the Continent sellers. After the official fixing, the market ruled quietly steady. The New York silver price remained unchanged at 37 cents.

The rapid depreciation of the American dollar in terms of sterling is causing much interest. Heavy speculation is undoubtedly responsible, and the Shanghai market is reported to be heavily overbought in U.S. dollars.

REMOVAL OF PLUGS AND SWITCHES

DEFENDANT'S PLEA IN A ROBBERY CASE

Sub-Inspector McLellan charged a Chinese before Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, with having broken into the third floor of No. 233, Gloucester Road, and stolen two power plugs and eight electric switches, the property of the Liu Hoi, and also with having possession of a screw driver and a chisel for an unlawful purpose. An alternative charge of receiving was also preferred.

The defendant said that a well-to-do friend of his lived in the premises, and before going back to the country asked him to take the switches and the plugs. He entered the premises with a key which he found hanging on a nail. Mr. Schofield remanded defendant for 48 hours, for inquiries to be made.

FAMOUS ALPINIST DIES

PRO. BURGERMEIER

Professor Burgermeister, aged 33, of Posen, regarded as Poland's best Alpinist, has died in the Tatra Mountains of Slovakia as a result of exposure and cold.

Accompanied by Professor Gron of Gnesen, Poland he was making an ascent of the difficult Genek peak. The two men were caught in a storm during the ascent and, finding the wind too strong for them to pitch a tent, decided to return down the mountain.

They had taken a whole day to cross a narrow ice-field, in the course of which night overtook them. After spending the night in the open they attempted the descent early in the morning but Professor Burgermeister collapsed on the way.

His companion struggled to the nearest police station but the rescue party despatched was played by the storm.—Reuter.

STRONG MAN OF ARABIA

KING IBN SAUD SPEAKS OUT

"ULTIMATE AIM"

Calro. "My ultimate aim is the unity of Moslems. For this I shall always be ready to fight."

Thus spoke King Ibn Saud, the ruler of what used to be known as the territories of the Hedjaz and Nejd—now the kingdom of the Sauds, and famous as the head of the Puritan Arab sect of the Wahibis and as Arabia's strong man.

Addressing the chief pilgrims to Mecca, who has given a reception in the King's honour, Ibn Saud went on to declare: "I am an Arab and a Moslem—and am now at the head of not less than 400,000 combatants ready to obey my instructions. These are the troops of the union and have no other aim but the glory of Islam."

"I have crushed all my enemies. What do they want? All my activities are clear. They say I want to be predominant and to become the Khalif. I never claimed this, as the Khalif's duty would be to make the word of Islam obeyed by every Moslem in every part of the world."

"Is there a man who can do this in these days? This was possible at the time of the 'Echidites' but that day has passed.—Reuter.

Dr. A. N. Jones, of the War Memorial Hospital, was summoned before Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, for causing obstruction with his car, at the Peak Hotel Annex in Stubbs Road.

Dr. Jones did not appear, and one week's remand was granted.

IMAGINARY UNIT.

The adoption of an imaginary gold unit to which the currencies of the world will have a definite ratio, will be proposed by the United States at the Conference.

This unit would be of a specific weight in gold of a certain fineness. The plan envisages that the first ratios to be established would be for the pound sterling and the United States dollar. Other world currencies and their ratio would be worked out later.

The plan would thus create an international standard and unit but would not provide an international currency for common use.

President Roosevelt and his advisers are said to be convinced that this would be the most practical means of simplifying the exchange question and preventing world-wide speculation in the various currencies.

The imaginary unit would be positively non-fluctuating.

It is understood that the United States will not insist on any particular weight for the unit if the other nations agree to this plan. It may range from about the weight of the gold franc, which is used for making international postal rates, to the present weight of the United States gold dollar.

Several hundred Russian residents this attended the ceremony at the laying of the cornerstone of the proposed Russian Orthodox Church on Route Paul Henri. Bishop Victor officiated, a troop of 250 Russian soldiers acted as escorts, and members from the Russian Company, S.V.C., gave a military touch to the proceedings.

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES—SUPPLIED BY THE
THEATRES

Osgood Perkins, who distinguished himself as a picturesque gang-leader in Howard Hughes' "Scarface," began his professional career with the Film Guild in New York City.

He played minor roles with this company until 1924, when he accepted a stage offer and appeared with Roland Young in "Boggar on Horseback."

The following year he played three minor roles in as many stage productions. From this type of characterization he went to the other extreme, and played a series of hard-boiled parts. In the latter impersonations he seems to have found his forte, and he has been playing similar characterizations since, both on stage and screen.

One of the outstanding portrayals of his career was in "The Front Page," of Broadway in which he was the original "Walter Burns."

Howard Hughes sent him to Hollywood when he completed his engagement in "To-morrow and To-morrow," and cast him for the role of "Love" in "Scarface," which is now showing at the King's Theatre, which is the outstanding characterization of his career.

This picture has Paul Muni in the leading role with Anna May Wong, a leading woman, playing opposite a new type and is said to be sensational.

"Make Me a Star."

An bells a movie with the title, "Make Me a Star" there is no dearth of talent in Stuart Erwin's picture at the Queen's Theatre.

In addition to the regular cast which includes Erwin, Joan Blondell, ZaSu Pitts and Ben Turpin, Maurice Chevalier, Sylvia Sydney, Claudette Colbert, Gary Cooper, Tallulah Bankhead, Clive Brook, Frederic March, Phillips Holmes, Jack Oakie and Charlie Ruggles, appear in studio scenes which are part of the plot-action of "Make Me a Star."

Erwin as the movie-struck hero-worshiper who saves up his pennies as a grocery clerk in a small midwest town and goes to the film capital seeking fame in pictures, meets these various stars in the course of his wandering about the studios, seeking a job as an extra.

Joan Blondell, as a double for a screen celebrity, and herself ambitious for stellar success, takes pity on Erwin, who is just a bewildered stooge, and finally helps him to win a doubtful renown.

"Pack Up Your Troubles"

Had army officials refused permission to loan tanks for use in the making of the latest Laurel and Hardy feature-length comedy, "Pack Up Your Troubles," now showing at the Oriental Theatre, the picture would probably never have been filmed.

And this would have been regrettable for the comedy is considered on the funniest thus far produced by the inimitable comedians. In the story there is a long, humorous sequence which takes place in the front line trenches.

Laurel and Hardy are a couple of misfit buck privates. Their pal gets lost in No Man's Land, and they are ordered to rescue him. Then they become entangled in a couple of tanks, and what happens is reported to be one of the many amusing highlights of the picture.

"Symphony of Six Million"

"Symphony of Six Million," the poignant story of real people is showing for the last time tonight at the Central Theatre, co-starring the RKO-Radio Pictures' favorites Ricardo Cortez and Irene Dunne. The part Cortez plays, is that of a boy of the New York Ghetto who overcomes his sordid environment to become a famous surgeon and minister to the wants of his people. Rich in sympathy, the character is human to the core and is one to bring forth an inspired performance.

Miss Dunne's role is that of a teacher who brings to the tots of the teeming Ghetto the life and colour of the world beyond their push-cart horizon.

Running through the drama of the story, with its human problems, joys and sorrow, is the golden thread of the romance of a busy surgeon and beautiful teacher.

"Greeks Had a Word For Them"

Those who see Samuel Goldwyn's film version of the recent New York comedy stage hit, "The Greeks Had a Word For Them," will readily concede that never before has the screen seen the counterpart of the three merry maids of Broadway whose squabbles and loyalties provide the hilarity of

KOWLOON WEDDING.

AT UNION CHURCH

The wedding was quietly solemnized at the Kowloon Union Church yesterday afternoon, between Miss Emma Gallo, daughter of Mr. John Gallo of New Jersey, U.S.A. and Mr. Emil Henry Gallit, son of the late Mr. Carl Gallit, the Rev. E. G. Powell officiating.

Among those present at the ceremony were Mr. James E. Greenan, former Justice of the Peace at Nevada, Mr. John A. Richardson, son of Mr. Friend Richardson, a former Governor of California, and Mr. H. L. Denny, a local solicitor.

The bride, who was dressed in white, was given away by her father and was attended by Mrs. E. C. Zilkowski. The duties of the story. The picture, comes to the King's Theatre on Thursday.

Jan is a young lady with a disarming complexion. The Greeks doubtlessly had a word for her, but one need not go back into the dead languages to classify such a "live one." She is what modern psychologists would call an Exhibitionist.

The story of "The Greek Had a Word For Them" is the tale of three feminine musketeers, who are "All For One and One For All," until a millionaire looms up on the horizon. Then it becomes a frantic battle of wits and words, with Madge Evans as Polaire and Joan Blondell as Schatz, trying to hold their men against the ruthless wiles of Ina Claire as Jean.

The Broken Wing.

Lupe Velez is Castilian-Mexican and was born in San Luis Potosi, of an aristocratic family of affluence and prominence, and well educated.

In childhood she showed pronounced dramatic talent, and had an incessant urge to dance—a natural outlet for her youthful vigour and vibrant temperament.

Victor Fleming, who directed one of her former pictures said that "Lupe" is the best movie doctor imaginable. Whenever she is not working before the camera, she busies herself entertaining the other members of the company. Seemingly tireless, she will sing and dance for hours while everyone who is otherwise occupied, gathers around her. Gloomy and that girl simply can not stay in the same vicinity.

In "The Broken Wing," which comes on Thursday to the Queen's she features with Leo Carrillo, Melvyn Douglas, and George Barbier in an intriguing sweetheart role with a Spanish flavour, similar to "Hell Husbands," "The Wolf Song," and "The Cuban," in which pictures she won the praise of critics and wide public esteem.

"Penalty of Fame"

Not only morsels of scandal, but tragedy and sudden death, are incidents in the life of a New York columnist, as known in "Penalty of Fame." Universal's newspaper drama which opens at the Central Theatre to-morrow with Lew Ayres in the starring role.

Ayres is seen in the role of a "chatter writer" on a great New York daily who supplements his activities with regular radio broadcasts, revealing indiscretions of well-known people and bringing consternation to "playboy" Broadwayites.

Ayres, in the character of Larry Wayne, devotes his attention to bits of gossip and news of apocryphal interest until the daughter of a millionaire is kidnapped, and he applies himself to the task of finding her. Receiving a tip from a sex-reporter who has been the source of many of his gossip items, Wayne establishes the fact that the girl has been abducted by a gang, and finally delivers to the gangster the sum of $100,000, paid as ransom by the distracted father. But the girl is not produced, and Wayne learns from the head of the gangsters, that she will not be returned until the authorities dismiss certain indictments against the arch-criminal.

By a ruse Wayne confers alone with the powerful super crook in the latter's hotel suite. When he goes on the air that night for his regular broadcast, Wayne startles his listeners by saying, "Right now I've got a story for you that's a honey. Tonight between six-thirty and seven o'clock—I killed." No good to tell what happened, You'd never guess but as Wayne said "It's a honey."

until yesterday afternoon. Twenty of the victims were swept from
